This collection of World War I posters and other ephemera was acquired by the Monmouth County Park System as part of the Portland Place property in 2010. The former property owner, Daniel Sietz, had within his estate various items believed to have belonged to his aunt, Julia Ward.

During World War I, Julia Ward (B1900- D1962) was a teenager living with her family in Washington D.C. and may have collected these posters and other ephemera. Julia's father was a retired naval lieutenant. Her family spent time abroad during the earlier years of her life. Both her time abroad and the family's military connection could have provided her with an interest and access to these materials while in her youth.

The collection includes posters from the United States, United Kingdom, France, and Russia as well as clippings from various books, newspapers, magazines, and postcards. In addition to these items, a set of books containing 125 illustration plates and descriptions, The Century Deluxe Edition of Raemaekers War Cartoons Vol. 1 and 2, is also included.

Additionally, a series of images that appear to be illustration plates removed from an unknown book have been painted with titles and slogans in watercolor at the borders. It appears to be a possible type of school project to create propaganda posters whether by Julia Ward herself, her younger sister Katherine, or her nephew Daniel Sietz the maker is unknown.
