

SECRETARY BAKER OPPOSES USE OF WAR EMERGENCY FUNDS TO MAKE PERMANENT ADDITIONS TO THE MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT

CHICAGO HOSPITAL SITUATION

No Decision Yet As to Which of Two Powder Plants at Nashville, Tenn., and Charleston, W. Va., Will Be Retained—Parade of District Troops.

Press interview by the Secretary of War December 28, 1918:

With regard to the Chicago hospital situation the Secretary said:

"The board appointed to investigate the matter reported unanimously in favor of completing the Fort Sheridan project; reported unanimously against reopening the Columbian Hospital project; reported unanimously that in their judgment the Speedway proposition is located in a suitable place for a permanent Army hospital building and is well adapted.

"I have directed the approval of the report with this modification, that the War Department has no right to spend money which has been appropriated for it for temporary war uses in making permanent additions to the Military Establishment, but that if the Congress wants us to establish a permanent military hospital in Chicago the Speedway will then be considered, but that as a war emergency it obviously is not necessary. I have asked the Surgeon General if he thinks it best to place a permanent military hospital there, and if so to prepare estimates for submission to Congress."

Powder Plants.

With reference to the powder plants at Nashville, Tenn., and Charleston, W. Va., the Secretary said:

"The situation is this: Before the war Congress had appropriated a sum of money to buy a piece of land for a permanent powder plant, on the ground that the Picatinny Arsenal, where we had been manufacturing our powder, was too small and wrongly located, and we were looking around for a suitable site. The policy of the department has been, with the approval of Congress, to abandon the Picatinny Arsenal. It would seem wise to keep one of the powder plants, and it is a question which one to keep. It has not yet been determined, so far as I know."

When asked as to the possibility of having a parade of returning District of Columbia troops, the Secretary said:

"I am sympathetic with every effort to have returning soldiers seen in their home towns and in other towns, and be-

NO DEATHS IN BELGIUM FROM STARVATION, SAYS HOOVER, REPORTING SURVEY OF THE FOOD SITUATION

FAMINE AVERTED BY RELIEF COMMISSION

Undernourishment Effects Can Be Stamped Out if America Continues to Send Food—People No Longer Need or Desire Charity Except Gifts of Clothing. Condition of 2,000,000 Children Good.

There has been no loss of life from starvation in Belgium and northern France, and the results of undernourishment during the occupation can be stamped out if America continues to send food. This is the report that Herbert Hoover, chairman of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, has sent to the commission headquarters in the United States after a careful personal survey of the whole field. The survival of the population of these territories, while a full quarter of other peoples under German domination have died of famine, is due to the work of the commission, he says, which for four years poured food across belligerent lines sufficient to keep the people above the margin of starvation.

Gratitude of People Unbounded.

The gratitude of these people, Mr. Hoover says in his cablegram, "is unbounded and embarrassing." They no longer need or desire to get food through charity; but owing to the systematic destruction of their textile industries they must still depend for clothing to a considerable extent upon the people of the United States.

Text of Cablegram.

Mr. Hoover's cable message was as follows:

"During the German occupation there was an effective control not only of distribution by the Commission for Relief in Belgium, but also of the native food supply, and with the retreat and demoralization in transport and Government before the reestablishment of the Belgian Government, there ensued a period when there was but little control over foodstuffs. This breaking down of the rationing control in such commodities as meats, butter, etc., has resulted in the whole of the very limited supply of such foodstuffs gravitating toward the rich through the fearful rise in prices.

Food, But at High Prices.

"The Belgian Government has established a food administration and these problems are being taken in hand just as rapidly as possible under the conditions. In the meantime, it is possible with sufficient money, to buy almost any kind of food in Belgium. For instance, meat is $2 a pound, eggs $1 each, and butter $2.50 a pound. Supplies are, of course, available to anyone who can pay these prices.

"This gives an appearance to the casual observer of sufficiency of food, but the fact is that over one-half the population of Belgium to-day has an income under $4 a week per family, and they, of course, are not participating in these kinds of foods, but are practically dependent upon the distribution of controlled imports by the Commission for Relief in Belgium.

Shipments by Commission.

"An examination of the population proves that the shipments of food by the commission for relief in Belgium during the past four years have brought this people through their ordeal without irreparable damage to the national health. There exists among certain classes undernutrition, but continued supplies of food will rapidly rectify this. There has been a considerable spread of tuberculosis as a result of this undernutrition, but the Belgian authorities believe that this can be stamped out without great loss, provided adequate supplies of food arrive.

"The most cheering factor in the situation is the condition of the two million Belgian children who have been the object of the utmost solicitude of the whole world during the four years of occupation. Because of the supplementary meals furnished by the relief commission and the many children's institutions which have been largely supported by the magnificent outpouring of world charity, these children have come through this period in a state of health perhaps even better than could be expected. This will be a cause of great satisfaction to the hundreds of thousands of people who have given liberally to save the child life of Belgium. Because of America's ready response to the appeal of the relief commission to save the future generation of Belgium, we may be duly proud of this result.

New Rationing System.

"The new rationing system and price control of meat and other native foodstuffs will be in operation in a few days. It has been necessary to increase the volume of imports, and with enlarged financial assistance from the American Government the distribution of these imported foodstuffs is now in operation practically throughout the territory.

"Prior to the evacuation something like 3,500,000 people were destitute, and were dependent, not only on the ration of imported commodities from the relief commission, but on further supplemental rations through the soup kitchens throughout Belgium. The energy of the Belgian people in getting back to work is rapidly diminishing the number of people in the soup lines, until to-day they probably do not exceed 2,000,000 people, and it is hoped that within another month this will be diminished to not more than a million.

In Need of Clothing.

"The people have had no textiles during a period of four years except for the meager imports by the Commission for Relief in Belgium, which have always been devoted to the destitute. The population is underdressed, and the one direction in which the Belgians are in need of charitable help is in large clothing supplies to the Commission on Relief for Belgium. There is no quantity of second-hand clothing that will not be needed and that will not bring gratitude in the heart of some individual Belgian.

"All Belgian officials and heads of committees are in agreement that Belgium does not want further charity from the world, except immediate supplies of second-hand clothing. The self-reliance and self-sufficiency of the people is the foremost phenomenon in Belgium to-day.

No Loss of Life By Starvation.

"Their gratitude for their salvation during the last four years is unbounded and embarrassing. The Belgian Government has asked that the Commission for Relief in Belgium continue as the vehicle for the import of foodstuffs and clothing only for the few months until these functions can be taken over by the Government.

"It is a point of fact that there has been no loss of life by starvation amongst the 10,000,000 people of Belgium and northern France. Poland and Serbia, also under German occupation, have lost one-fourth of their people. The difference was the Commission for Relief in Belgium, which has shipped to these stricken people in the past four years more than 4,250,000 tons of food costing $600,000,000.

"My survey of the rest of Europe, the Baltic States, and Poland is not complete, but sufficient evidence is at hand to show that before next harvest relief of an unprecedented character must be extended if the remaining population is to be maintained in any semblance of health, and, beyond the financial and transportation arrangements which I am now negotiating, it is almost inevitable that our people will be called upon to contribute liberally."

WAR BOARD FELT SECTION IS FORMALLY DISBANDED

The War Industries Board authorizes the following:

OPPOSED BY SECRETARY BAKER.

fore the demobilization is complete I hope to be able to arrange a real demonstration in Washington. Whether it will be of local troops or not remains to be seen.

"I will not approve of any arrangement for a parade which will not be a credit to our wonderful Army."

Peace of the World Rests In Trust of League of Nations Says President Wilson in Address at London Guildhall

PRESIDENT WILSON speaking at the Guildhall, London, Saturday afternoon, December 28, in response to an address of welcome by the Lord Mayor, said: "Mr. Lord Mayor, we have come upon times when ceremonies like this have a new significance which most impresses me as I stand here. The address which I have just heard is most generously and graciously conceived, and the delightful accent of sincerity in it seems like a part of that voice of counsel which is now everywhere to be heard. I feel that a distinguished honor has been conferred upon me by this reception, and I beg to assure you, sir, and your associates, of my very profound appreciation, but I know that I am only part of what I may call a great body of circumstances. I do not believe that it was fancy on my part that I heard in the voice of welcome, uttered in the streets of this great city and in the streets of Paris, something more than a personal welcome.

"The Voice of One People Heard Speaking to Another People"

It seemed to me that I heard the voice of one people speaking to another people, and it was a voice in which one could distinguish a singular combination of emotions. There was surely there the deep gratefulness that the fighting was over. There was the pride that the fighting had had such a culmination. There was that sort of gratitude that the nations engaged had produced such men as the soldiers of Great Britain and of the United States, and of France, and of Italy—men whose prowess and achievements they had witnessed with rising admiration as they moved from culmination to culmination. But there was something more in it, the consciousness that the business is not yet done, the consciousness that it now rests upon others to see that those lives were not lost in vain. I have not yet been to the actual battlefields, but I have been with many of the men who have fought the battles, and the other day I had the pleasure of being present at a session of the French Academy when they admitted Marshal Joffre to their membership. That sturdy, serene soldier stood and uttered not the words of triumph, but the simple words of affection for his soldiers, and the conviction which he summed up in a sentence, which I will not try accurately to quote, but reproduce in its spirit, was that France must always remember that the small and the weak could never live free in the world unless the strong and the great always put their power and their strength in the service of right. That is the afterthought—the thought that something must be done now not only to make the just settlements, that of course, but to see that the settlements remained and were observed, and that honor and justice prevailed in the world. And as I have conversed with the soldiers I have been more and more aware that they fought for something that not all of them had defined, but which all of them recognized the moment you stated it to them.

So-Called "Balance of Power" To Be Wiped Out Forever

"They fought to do away with an old order, and to establish a new one, and the center and characteristic of the old order was that instable thing which we used to call the 'balance of power,' a thing in which the balance was determined by the sword which was thrown in the one side or the other, a balance which was determined by the unstable equilibrium of competitive interests, a balance which was maintained by jealous watchfulness and an antagonism of interests which, though it was generally latent, was always deep-seated. The men who have fought in this war have been the men from free nations who were determined that that sort of thing should end now and forever. It is very interesting to me to observe how from every quarter, from every sort of mind, from every concert of counsel there comes the suggestion that there must now be not a balance of power, not one powerful group of nations set off against another, but a single, overwhelming, powerful group of nations who shall be the trustees of the peace of the world. It has been delightful in my conference with the leaders of your Government to find how our minds moved along exactly the same line, and how our thought was always that the key to the peace was the guarantee of the peace, not the items of it; that the items would be worthless unless there stood back of them a permanent concert of power for their maintenance.

Most Reassuring Thing That Has Ever Happened in the World's History

"That is the most reassuring thing that has ever happened in the world. When this war began the thought of a league of nations was indulgently considered as the interesting thought of closeted students. It was thought of as one of those things that it was right to characterize by a name which, as a university man, I have always resented. It was said to be academic, as if that in itself were a condemnation, something that men could think about but never get. Now we find the practical leading minds of the world determined to get it. No such sudden and potent union of purpose has ever been witnessed in the world before. Do you wonder, therefore, gentlemen, that, in common with those who represent you, I am eager to get at the business and write the sentences down? And that I am particularly happy that the ground is cleared and the foundations laid—for we have already accepted the same body of principles. Those principles are clearly and definitely enough stated to make their application a matter which should afford no fundamental difficulty. And back of us is that imperative yearning of the world to have all disturbing questions, to have all threats against peace, silenced, to have just men everywhere come together for a common object.

"Peoples of World Want Peace by Agreement of Mind, and Want It Now"

"The peoples of the world want peace, and they want it now, not merely by conquest of arms, but by agreement of mind. It was this incomparably great object that brought me overseas. It has never before been deemed excusable for a President of the United States to leave the territory of the United States, but I know that I have the support of the judgment of my colleagues in the Government of the United States in saying that it was my paramount duty to turn away even from the imperative tasks at home to lend such counsel and aid as I could to this great, may I not say final, enterprise of humanity."

FARM SERVICE DIVISION.

A farm service division in the United States Employment Service has been created to direct the special farm labor supplying efforts which the Department of Labor will make during the coming season, the department announces.

M. A. Coykendall, of Nebraska, who has been chief of the farm section, has been appointed director of the new division. John T. Connel, of Mississippi, has been made assistant director.

Through this division and regular and special offices in the field, the Federal Employment Service will recruit and distribute harvesters for the western wheat belt, in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture. It also will be concerned with farm labor supplying in other sections of the country.

COL. MORROW DETAILED.

The detail of Col. Frank J. Morrow, General Staff, as a member of the committee on education and special training, created by General Orders, No. 15, War Department, 1918, to date from December 14, 1918, vice Lieut. Col. Grenville Clark, adjutant general, discharged, is announced.

INTERALLIED AGREEMENT FOR TIN CONTROL ABROGATED

The interallied agreement for the control of the world's supply of tin has been abrogated.

The War Industries Board mission undertook negotiations with the British Government authorities in London in the early part of August, 1918, with a view to arranging an international agreement whereby the world's supplies of tin would be controlled and distributed to the allied nations in an economic and efficient manner, so as to insure adequate supplies of this necessary material for use in the war industries.

Four Nations in Pact.

An agreement was negotiated between the United States, Great Britain, France, and Italy under which the available world's supplies of tin were allocated to each consuming country in accordance with the ascertained needs of each country for necessary war work. The agreement also created an interallied tin executive, whose duty it was to arrange for the purchase of tin at each producing center and allocate such purchases in accordance therewith. It was left to each consuming country to provide its own machinery to pay for and import the tin allocated to it.

The War Industries Board requested the American Iron and Steel Institute to provide some organization for the purpose of financing and distributing the tin purchased by the executive for consumers in the United States, and the American Iron and Steel Institute arranged, with the approval of the War Industries Board, that the United States Steel Products Co. should perform this function.

Effect of Agreement.

Under the tin agreement and the arrangements thus perfected the American consumers were assured of obtaining their supplies of tin at the same price at the point of production that was paid by the other participating countries and at absolute net cost of import. In view of the fact that there is no tin produced in this country, the tin agreement was a most desirable and efficient arrangement to insure to American consumers supplies of this metal at a price which would compare favorably with the price paid by their competitors in other consuming markets. As a matter of fact it insured American consumers their supplies of tin at a lower cost than that paid by any other consuming market, for the reason that importations into the United States under the tin agreement would be made and distributed at cost, whereas importations into other consuming countries would carry an importer's profit.

Change in Export Rules On Wheat Flour to Cuba

The War Trade Board announces in a new ruling (W. T. B. R. 464), after consultation with the United States Food Administration, that on and after February 1, 1919, applications will be considered for licenses to export wheat flour to Cuba.

Hitherto the regulations of the board

HEAT GENERATING FOODS FREE TO NORTH EUROPE NEUTRALS

License for Export Granted by War Trade Board on All Pork and Pork Products.

The crying need of northern European neutral countries for heat-generating food will be met to a notable degree with exports from the United States, with the approval of the allied Governments, Vance McCormick, chairman of the War Trade Board, announces.

Pork and pork products, it was announced, will hereafter be on the War Trade Board free list for export to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Holland. Norway and Sweden especially require these foods, and there is now an adequate supply of them in the United States. Placing them on the free list means that license for their export will be granted freely, and it was announced that no import licenses from country of destination will be necessary.

The board also placed on the free list for export to the same nations iron and steel and manufactures thereof except high-speed steel. These exports were halted by the necessities of war, and their resumption opens the way to the re-establishment of normal trade conditions in this direction.

U. S. IS LIBERALLY SHARING FOOD SUPPLIES WITH SWEDEN

Marked evidence of the friendship existing between America and Sweden was found in the announcement by the War Trade Board that the export of foodstuffs urgently needed by the Swedish people had been authorized and that these foodstuffs probably would arrive in Sweden in time for Christmas.

Included in the list of supplies now on the way are the following:

Coffee.....	pounds.....	6, 782, 000
Cocon beans.....	do.....	2, 032, 800
Dried fruits.....	do.....	2, 000, 000
Sweetened condensed milk.....	tons.....	500
Pork.....	do.....	1, 500

This shipment, it was made clear, is not out of any superabundance of supplies. On the contrary, it represents a sharing with the Swedish people of commodities of which this Nation itself could use all that it has. The shortage of these commodities in Sweden is acute.

have required that shipments of wheat flour to Cuba should be made by the United States Food Administration Grain Corporation to the director of subsistence, Cuba. After February 1, 1919, this procedure will no longer be necessary. Applications for export licenses permitting individual shipments will then be considered, when approved by the grain corporation; and to avoid any possibility of delay arrangements have been made by which this approval will be obtained by the War Trade Board in Washington.

Better than money because they earn money; buy a WAR-SAVINGS STAMP, TO-DAY.

WORK OF CONGRESS BRIEFLY TOLD

SENATE.

At the request of the Secretary of War, Chairman Dent, of the House Military Committee, has introduced a resolution to express the thanks of Congress to the men who operated the selective-draft system and to provide medals to be presented to them by the Secretary of War. In a letter supporting such action the Secretary of War wrote:

"In all the vast and exigent work of the war no measure enacted by Congress stands out more completely justified in the wisdom of its policy than the selective-service system. Comparisons among citizens of the country who performed, each in his own place, service in the national cause would be invidious, and yet I venture to doubt whether there has ever been a more inspiring picture of fidelity than was given by the members of these boards."

Under the terms of the resolution the thanks of Congress would be extended "to the governors, adjutants general, draft executives, and aides of the States and Territories of the United States, as defined by the selective-draft regulations, the members of local and district boards, the members of medical and legal advisory boards, and Government appeal agents, for their services, rendered without military preferment or proportionate pecuniary reward, in administration of the selective-service law and as a further expression of appreciation and gratitude for the able and efficient manner in which such services were performed, and in recognition of their invaluable contribution to the successful prosecution of the war, the Secretary of War be, and hereby is, authorized and directed to cause to be struck and presented to each of such officials in the name of Congress an appropriate medal with suitable emblematical devices and inscriptions to be determined by him."

HOUSE.

At its session Saturday afternoon the House Rules Committee decided to report a special rule giving the right of way to legislation validating verbal contracts made by the War Department for military supplies. This action was taken after Secretary Baker and Assistant Secretary Crowell had explained the facts and explained the importance of the legislation sought. More than 6,600 contracts amounting to $1,675,000,000 are held by manufacturers in the United States and many millions are held by manufacturers in England and France. The legislation, Secretary Baker emphasized, would not only enable the Government to carry out its just obligations, but would result in large economies for the Government in the end. Chairman Sherley, of the Appropriations Committee; Chairman Dent, of the Military Committee; and Representative Kahn, ranking minority member of the Military Committee, added their recommendations to the Rules Committee for favorable action. The rule will be reported on January 2, the day upon which the House reconvenes after its present holiday recess plan.

WASHINGTON HOLIDAY TRAVEL AHEAD OF ALL PAST RECORDS

Director General of Railroads McAdoo authorizes the following:

Complete reports covering the Washington Christmas travel for the period December 16 to 24, inclusive, show the number of passengers handled was at least one-third more than a year ago. It was by far the largest passenger traffic for any period in the history of the city.

There was a total of 11,369 tickets sold in Washington for the period named and the revenue was $731,998.23. The total number of persons arriving at Washington Union Station was 256,535; the total number departing was 335,000; the number of passengers going through Washington was 223,631; the number stopping off important amendments to the Federal reserve act, has been favorably reported to the House and will be called up as early as possible after the holiday recess. These amendments provide that net earnings of each Federal reserve bank above dividend requirements shall accumulate in the surplus fund until it reaches 100 per cent of the subscribed capital; to permit reserve banks to rediscount to a greater extent for member banks on Liberty bonds security; to allow national banks in cities of 100,000 population having a capital and surplus of $1,000,000 or more to establish branches within the city limits; to permit bank notes and Federal reserve notes to carry engraved signatures; removing existing restrictions which prohibit the members of the Federal Reserve Board from accepting any position in any member bank for two years after their retirement from the Reserve Board.

in Washington for the holidays was 32,924; the net exodus from Washington proper was 78,445, many of whom were war workers, who will probably not return. The number of pieces of baggage handled was 69,030, and the number of parcels handled in the parcel room 27,780, an increase of 50 per cent over a year ago. The number of meals served at the restaurant was one-third larger than a year ago.

To handle this large volume of traffic there were operated out of Washington 2,055 sleeping cars and 3,905 passenger coaches, being an increase over a year ago of 686 sleeping cars and 869 coaches. Owing to careful preparation, practically everyone who applied for sleeping-car accommodations was accommodated. Extra baggage transfer forces were provided, and Christmas Day there was no delayed baggage left over in the station as has generally been the case.

The smoothness and lack of confusion with which the business was conducted this year is due to the fact that it was all directed by one authority, which coordinated the work of all the departments of all the roads.

U. S. Transport Tenadores Ashore in Bay of Biscay

The Navy Department is informed that the U. S. transport Tenadores went aground December 23 north of the Isle D'Yeu, in the Bay of Biscay, south of St. Nazaire, France. The report states that the vessel can probably be floated, and tugs have gone to her assistance. No troops were aboard at the time.

The Tenadores was formerly a United Fruit Company steamship of 7,700 tons, and was recently converted into a troopship.

King George's Toast; President Wilson's Reply At Buckingham Palace, London, State Dinner

Welcomed to "The Country Whence Came Your Ancestors, Where Stand the Homes of Those From Whom Sprang Washington and Lincoln."

THE speech of King George at the state banquet to the President of the United States at Buckingham Palace, London, Friday night, December 27, follows:

"This is an historic moment, and your visit marks an historic epoch. Nearly 150 years have passed since your Republic began its independent life, and now for the first time a President of the United States is our guest in England. We welcome you to the country whence came your ancestors, where stands the homes of those from whom sprang Washington and Lincoln. We welcome you for yourself as one whose insight, calmness, and dignity in discharge of his high duties we have watched with admiration. We see in you a happy union of the gifts of the scholar with those of the statesman. You came from a studious academic quiet into the full stream of an arduous public life, and your deliverances have combined breadth of view and grasp of world problems with mastery of a lofty diction recalling that of your great orators of the past and of our own. You come as official head and spokesman of a mighty Commonwealth bound to us by the closest ties. Its people speak the tongue of Shakespeare and Milton. Our literature is yours, as yours is also ours, and men of letters in both countries have joined in maintaining its incomparable glories. To you not less than to us belong memories of our national heroes from King Alfred down to days of Philip Sidney and Drake, of Raleigh and Blake and Hampden to the days when political life of English stock in North America was just beginning. You share with us traditions of free self-government as old as Magna Charta. We recognize a bond of still deeper significance in the common ideals which our peoples cherish. First among those ideals you value and we value freedom and peace. Privileged as we have been to be exponents and examples in national life of the principles of popular self-government based upon equal laws it now falls to both of us alike to see how these principles can be applied beyond our own borders for the good of the world. It was love of liberty, respect for law, good faith, and the sacred rights of humanity that brought you to the old world to join in saving it from dangers that were thickening around and that arranged those citizen soldiers of yours, whose gallantry we have admired, side by side with ours in war. You have now come to help in building up new States amid ruins of those war has shattered, and in laying the solid foundations of a settlement that may stand firm because it will rest upon the consent of emancipated nationalities. You have eloquently expressed the hope of the American people, as it is our hope, that some plan may be devised to attain the end you have done so much to promote, by which risk of future wars may if possible be averted, relieving nations of the intolerable burden which the fear of war has laid upon them. The British nation wishes all success to the deliberations on which you and we and the great free nations allied with us are now to enter moved by disinterested good will and a sense of duty commensurate with power which we hold as a solemn trust. The American and British peoples have been brothers in arms, and their arms have been crowned with victory. We thank with all our hearts your valiant soldiers and sailors for their splendid part in that victory as we thank the American people for their noble response to the call of civilization and humanity. May the same brotherly spirit inspire and guide our united efforts to secure for the world the blessings of an ordered freedom and an enduring peace.

In asking you to join with me in drinking the health of the President I wish to say with what pleasure we welcome Mrs. Wilson to this country. I would drink to the health of the President of the United States and Mrs. Wilson and to the happiness and prosperity of the great American Nation.

"The Hearts of Men Have Never Beaten so Singularly in Unison Before; Men Never so Conscious of Their Brotherhood," Says President Proposing Health.

REPLYING to the King, President Wilson said:

"Your Majesty, I am deeply complimented by the gracious words which you have uttered. The welcome which you have given me and Mrs. Wilson has been so warm, so natural, so evidently from the heart that we have been more than pleased, we have been touched by it, and I believe I correctly interpret that welcome as embodying not only your own generous spirit toward us personally but also as expressing for yourself and the great nation over which you preside that same feeling for my people of the United States. For you and I, sir,—I temporarily—embody the spirit of two great nations, and whatever strength I have and whatever authority I possess, only so long, so far as I express the spirit and purpose of the American people. Any influence that the American people have over affairs of the world is measured by their sympathy with the aspirations of free men everywhere. America does love freedom and I believe that she loves freedom unselfishly. But if she does not she will not and can not help the influence to which she justly aspires. I have had the privilege, sir, of conferring with the leaders of your own Government and with the spokesmen for the Governments of France and Italy, and I am glad to say that I have the same conceptions that they have of the significance and scope of the duty upon which we have met. We have used great words, all of us; we have used great words 'Right' and 'Justice,' and now we are to prove whether or not we understand those words and how they are to be applied to particular settlements which must conclude this war. And we must not only understand them but we must have courage to act upon our understanding. Yet after I have uttered the word 'courage' it comes into my mind that it would take more courage to resist the great moral tide now running in the world than to yield to it, than to obey it. There is a great tide running in the hearts of men. Hearts of men have never beaten so singularly in unison before. Men have never before been so conscious of their brotherhood. Men have never before realized how little difference there was between right and justice in one latitude and in another under one sovereignty and under another, and it will be our high privilege I believe, sir, not only to apply the moral judgment of the world to particular settlements which we shall attempt but also to organize the moral force of the world to preserve those settlements, to steady the forces of mankind, and to make right and justice, to which great nations like our own have devoted themselves, the predominant and controlling force of the world.

"There is something inspiring in knowing that this is the errand that we have come on. Nothing less than this would have justified me in leaving the important tasks which fell upon me on the other side of the sea, nothing but the consciousness that nothing else compares with this dignity and importance. Therefore it is the more delightful to find myself in the company of a body of men united in ideal and in purpose, and feel that I am privileged to unite my thought with yours in carrying forward these standards which we are so proud to hold high and defend.

"May I not, sir, with feeling profound sincerity and friendship and sympathy propose your own health and the health of the Queen and the prosperity of Great Britain."

NAVAL DELEGATION LEAVES FOR EUROPE TO ADJUST CONTRACTS

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, Hon. T. J. Spellacy, and Commander J. M. Hancock Compose Party.

Secretary Daniels issued the following statement to-day:

"Assistant Secretary Franklin D. Roosevelt, Hon. T. J. Spellacy, as special counsel, and Commander John M. Hancock, United States Navy, of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, will leave to-day for Great Britain and France.

"During the war the Navy entered into a large number of contracts abroad, including rentals, purchase and lease of land for naval bases and other naval purposes. It is the desire of the department to close up these contracts, which involve millions of dollars, at as early a date as possible. In order to arrange this business with the least possible delay, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt is given authority to act for the department, and his presence in Europe and conference with Admiral Sims and other officers and with contractors, governmental and private, will permit of settlement with dispatch.

Special Legal Adviser.

"As legal questions, involving all phases of contracts under British and French laws, are involved, the department has commissioned Hon. T. J. Spellacy, of Hartford, Conn., as special legal adviser. Mr. Spellacy is United States District Attorney of the State of Connecticut and is peculiarly suited for this duty.

"From the beginning of the war Commander Hancock has represented the Navy Department on the price-fixing committee of the War Industries Board, and has shown business ability of the highest order, which has been recognized and commended by all business men who have had dealings with the board.

Early Demobilization.

"The Navy has had as many as 70,000 men abroad during the war, and has rented hospitals, operated a number of coastal aviation stations, and leased land for a number of naval needs. It has not always been possible, owing to the necessity of immediate use, to agree upon the compensation. Some of these arrangements were with the allied Governments and some with individuals or corporations. It is the plan of the department to close up all aviation stations at once and very shortly to return all supplies, munitions, etc., to America, and to recall all the naval personnel ashore except the naval attaches and their assistants. The Navy mobilized rapidly and it sent forces quickly to Europe.

"The department hopes to demobilize its forces in Europe within the next few weeks and to adjust all contracts and claims. It is for this purpose the Assistant Secretary, Mr. Spellacy, and Commander Hancock go abroad to-day."

Return to Duty of Rural Mail Carriers Absent For Military Service

OFFICE OF FOURTH ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL, Washington, December 23, 1918.

Rural carriers who have been granted leave to render military service, when mustered out, should be restored to their former duties within a reasonable time from the date of their discharge. Postmasters will report to the department the dates such carriers resume service.

A temporary carrier appointed from civil service eligible register to serve the route during the absence of the regular carrier on military duty is eligible for reassignment, and will be appointed to any other route at the same office on which a vacancy may exist.

JAS. I. BLAKSLEE,

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General.

MORE MILL FEEDS IN PROSPECT, FOOD ADMINISTRATION SAYS

The Food Administration issues the following:

With the return of all-wheat bread to American tables following the relaxation of substitute regulations, farmers of the country may expect a somewhat increased supply of mill feeds. The amount will be further enlarged by the recently increased purchases of flour by the Food Administration Grain Corporation for export. Export of flour rather than wheat is now possible because of increased ocean tonnage available since the signing of the armistice.

A third factor which is expected to increase supplies of mill feeds is the cancellation of the so-called "milling extraction rule" which, as a war-time measure, diverted into flour a considerable proportion of the wheat berry ordinarily used for feed.

All of these developments combined are expected to increase the mill-feed output fully a fifth, and this extra feed should be available about the end of December. In presenting these facts the Food Administration warns against excessive optimism over the situation, since there will be a continued shortage of mill feed compared with prewar years. The price of these feeds is being maintained by regulation at an artificially low level which obviously stimulates an abnormal demand.

Briefly, more mill feeds are in prospect and they will be available about the Christmas holidays, but the supply will be short of demand and continued conservation is necessary.

COAL ZONE MODIFICATIONS.

Two new zone modification orders, permitting the further shipment of bituminous coal from parts of West Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania and into sections of Maryland, the District of Columbia, and New England, have been made public by the United States Fuel Administration.

One order, modifying bituminous coal zone P-1, permits the all-rail shipment of bituminous coal on the Baltimore & Ohio,

Development of Federal Reserve System During 1918 Outlined in Board Review

A general outline of development in the field of Federal Reserve banking during the calendar year 1918 is presented by the Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement of condition of the reserve banks on the last Friday in 1918 and 1917.

War service in the fiscal field involving close cooperation with the Government in floating the Liberty loans, including concentration and disbursement of funds for and on account of the Government, became the leading activity of the banks during the year, overshadowing to a large extent their purely commercial functions. As fiscal agents for the Government, the reserve banks received subscriptions through member and nonmember banks and bankers to the third and fourth Liberty loans of 4,159 and 6,955 millions, besides placing 15 issues of Treasury certificates in anticipation of the third, fourth, and fifth Liberty loans, representing a total of 8,781 millions and 7 issues of certificates aggregating 1,884 millions issued in anticipation of tax payments.

Transfer of Funds.

By far the larger portion of the funds collected for the Government was disbursed in New York City, and this necessitated continuous transfers of funds from the interior through the use of the gold settlement fund. After disbursement the greater part of these funds found their way back to the various sections of the country, again, largely through the credit machinery of the Federal Reserve System, without actual shipment of currency.

Not less important was the work of the reserve banks in financing their members in connection with the several war-loan operations of the Government. It is this part of their work which is mainly reflected in the adjoining statement, primarily through the large growth of the reserve banks' holdings of so-called war paper, i. e., bills secured by Liberty bonds and Treasury certificates. As a matter of fact, of the total increase for the year of 1,250 millions in earning assets, 1,117 millions is represented by the increase in the holdings of war paper. Amounts of other discounts on hand at the close of the present year (commercial paper proper), after the usual seasonal fluctuations, vary but little from corresponding totals shown the year before. Acceptances on hand were largest in volume about the end of October, when nearly 400 millions were reported. Since then these offerings have somewhat slackened, and the total holdings reported at the close of the year, 304 millions, are about 28 millions in excess of the total shown for December 28, 1917.

Bank Holdings of Bonds.

During the year the banks' holdings of United States bonds show a reduction by about 20 millions, partly through the redemption by the Government of 3 per cent bonds due during the year, also through the disposal of Liberty bonds held temporarily for the accommodation of member and nonmember banks. An increase of 224 millions in the holdings of Government short-term securities represents primarily a total of 162 millions of Treasury certificates to cover temporary advances to the Government held at present by one bank pending the collection of funds from depository institutions, and to a lesser extent investments in one-year 2 per cent certificates to secure Federal reserve bank notes. Total earning assets of the banks increased during the year from 1,068 to 2,318 millions, or 117 per cent. Of the latter total, discounts constitute 73.5 per cent as against 63.7 per cent at the end of 1917; acceptances, 13.1 per cent as against 25.8 per cent, and United States securities, 13.4 per cent as against 10 per cent at the close of 1917.

Concentration of Gold.

Concentration of the country's monetary stock of gold at the reserve banks continued during the year, with the result that the Federal reserve banks hold at present 2,090.3 millions of gold as against 1,671.1 millions on the last Friday in 1917, their present holdings being over two-thirds of the officially estimated monetary stock of gold in the country. A large portion of this gold was obtained in exchange for Federal reserve notes, the circulation of which increased during the year from 1,246.5 to 2,685.2 millions. The latter total constitutes about 70 per cent of the total paper circulation of the country (exclusive of the gold and silver certificates) as against 54 per cent at the close of 1917. Included in the total present paper circulation is a total of 117 millions of Federal reserve bank notes, which were issued to take the place of standard silver dollars broken up and silver certificates retired from circulation under the act of April 23, 1918.

Growth of the System.

Some indication of the growth of the system is afforded by the comparative figures of paid-in capital, which show an increase of over 10 millions, from $70,442,000 to $80,681,000, representing an increase in the aggregate capital and surplus of member banks of $341,300,000, practically all of which is due to the acquisition of new members during the year. The largest relative gains in capital are shown by the Philadelphia and Chicago banks, while the largest increases in the number of banks admitted to membership during the year are reported for the Chicago, Dallas, and San Francisco districts.

Gross deposits of the reserve banks show an increase from 1,771 to 2,312.5 millions, the largest increases under this general head being shown for members' reserve deposits and foreign Government credits. Net deposits indicate a much smaller growth, because of the reduction in Government deposits and the larger "float" carried at present by the reserve banks.

Large increases in Government deposits, also substantial gains in holdings of Liberty bonds and loans secured by Government war obligations, accompanied by liquidation in some volume of all other loans and investments, are indicated by the board's weekly statement showing condition on December 20 of 756 member banks in leading cities.

Holdings of Treasury certificates decreased 2.8 millions at all reporting banks, the larger decrease of 18.7 millions reported by the New York City banks being almost entirely offset by increases under this head shown for other central reserve and reserve city banks. United States bonds, rather than circulation bonds, show an increase for the week of 32.2 millions, substantial gains being reported by both reserve city and country banks. War paper, i. e., loans secured by Government war obligations, increased 8 millions, largely at banks outside reserve cities. All other loans and investments decreased 77.7 millions, net liquidation under this head of 32.2 and 57.8 millions being reported by banks in New York City and in other reserve cities, respectively, while country banks show an increase for the week of 9.7 millions.

Ratio of Obligations.

The ratio of United States war obligations and war paper combined to total loans and investments of all reporting banks works out at 22.7 as against 22.4 per cent the week before. For the central reserve city banks this ratio remains unchanged at 24.5 per cent.

Government deposits show an increase for the week of 219.6 millions, of which 91.4 millions represents the increase at New York City banks and 110.4 millions the increase at banks in other reserve cities. Other demand deposits, net, increased 36.4 millions, the larger gain of 48.8 millions reported by the New York City banks being partially offset by net withdrawals at banks in other reserve cities. Inversely, time deposits declined 33.4 millions during the week, 23.3 millions representing withdrawals at other reserve city banks.

Reserve balances with Federal reserve banks went up 31.3 millions at New York City banks and 29 millions at all reporting banks, while cash in vault declined 5.1 millions. For all reporting banks the ratio of deposits to investments, mainly because of the large increase in Government deposits, works out at 80.2 per cent as against 78.3 per cent the week before. Likewise this ratio shows a rise from 86.4 to 89.2 per cent for the central reserve city banks. The ratio of combined cash and reserve to deposits declined from 15.4 to 15.3 per cent for all reporting banks, while for central reserve city banks this ratio rose from 16.2 to 16.4 per cent. "Excess reserves" of all reporting banks work out at 105 millions, as against 78.1 millions the week before. For the central reserve city banks an increase in this item from 46.6 to 68.1 millions may be noted.

SAVES MILLION IN COFFEE.

The War Department authorizes the following from the office of the Director of Purchase and Storage:

A saving of $1,064,700 has been made for the Government in one purchase of coffee for the Army by the Subsistence Division. Anticipating a sharp increase in the cost of coffee the Subsistence Division made a purchase of 117,000 bags of green coffee just before the raise in price. Since the purchase was made the price has advanced 7 cents per pound. Each bag contains 130 pounds of coffee, making a total purchase of 15,210,000 pounds. This quantity will supply the troops in the United States and overseas until March 1, 1919.

Summary of Work and Expenditures Of the Bureau of Steam Engineering In Report to Secretary of the Navy

A summary of the annual report to the Secretary of the Navy of R. S. Griffin, Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, shows that appropriations were made for the support of the bureau for the fiscal years 1917 and 1918 as follows:

	1917	1918
Bureau of Steam Engineering:
Engineering.....	$9,056,376.28	$12,270,000.00
Engineering, urgent deficiencies.....	1,668,840.00	44,950,530.00
High-power radio stations.....	300,000.00	600,000.00
Engineering experiment station, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., experimental and research work.....	85,000.00	85,000.00
Experimental and research work, urgent deficiencies.....		8,000.00

Construction of propelling machinery for the North Dakota, Salem, Mayrant, and Henley.....	1,000,000.00	190,000.00
Machinery plants at navy yards.....	200,000.00	65,210.00
Salaries, Bureau of Steam Engineering.....	53,150.00
Allotments to the bureau from appropriations under the Secretary of the Navy:
Aviation, Navy.....	777,833.34	20,877,700.00
Naval emergency fund.....		7,397,837.00
Naval emergency fund for new construction.....		26,741,500.00
Funds appropriated under joint appropriations:
Increase of Navy, construction and machinery.....	59,000,194.00	93,123,000.00
Increase of Navy, torpedo boats.....	13,749,593.00	22,931,000.00
Increase of Navy, torpedo-boat destroyers.....		225,000,000.00

Continuing the report says:

Assuming that 50 per cent of the funds appropriated under joint appropriations are expended by this bureau, its total expenditures become for:

Fiscal year, 1917..... $40,536,093.12
Fiscal year, 1918..... 283,742,767.00

Therefore, during this year of war the expenditures have been nearly six times those of the preceding fiscal year, during nine months of which we were at peace.

Further, the average expenditure per day during this year of war was $777,377, or more than three-quarters of a million dollars. Figures such as these show that, on the sea as on the land, this is very largely an engineering war.

The engineering work of the Navy, both mechanical and electrical, has been—not only in its actual amount, but in the rapid development of facilities for its execution—without a parallel, for the same period of time, in the history of the world's navies.

The report shows that there is a grand total of 1,959 vessels in service or soon to be commissioned, which is America's naval contribution, to date, to the forces waging war against the central powers. The Bureau of Steam Engineering is charged with the care and repair of the great bulk of the machinery of this vast fleet.

Construction and Repair.

In navy yards and at private plants there are now under construction 376 combatant and auxiliary vessels and 52 tugs for the Navy. The machinery for these vessels is being built either by the machinery division at navy yards, or at private plants under the supervision of inspectors designated by this bureau.

Very extensive facilities are required for handling the construction and repair work for the machinery of this huge Navy. Large extensions of the plants of the Machinery Division have been made at virtually all of our navy yards.

As a virtual expansion of navy-yard facilities, about 18 bases have been established in the various naval districts for the repair and maintenance of the machinery of all district vessels, such as gunboats, destroyers, patrol vessels, submarine chasers, and submarines.

Our Navy has now in service in European waters about 264 ships, carrying 42,000 officers and men. To keep the ships of this large force "always ready" across 3,000 miles of sea is a task of no small magnitude, both in having repair ships and convenient repair bases adjacent to the war areas, and in the transport of spare and repair parts and of supplies to these ships and bases.

For this work of repair and supply the Navy has a total of five major bases—three in France, one in Great Britain, and one at Gibraltar. There are also two minor bases in or near the Mediterranean. Their work is reenforced by the services of six repair ships.

Electrical Work of Bureau.

The electrical work of the Bureau of Steam Engineering is very extensive, both in scope and magnitude. Approximately $20,000,000 were expended for this purpose during the fiscal year.

All matters relating to radio equipment—except the actual operations by the radio personnel—on naval vessels and at naval radio stations are directed by the Bureau of Steam Engineering. The radio installations for ships built and under contract are now approximately 4,000. This number includes all vessels of the Navy, combatant and auxiliary, of the Army, and of all other branches of the Government, including the United States Shipping Board, Emergency Fleet Corporation. In addition to this radio service on Government-owned vessels, this bureau is responsible for the radio equipment on privately owned American merchant vessels requisitioned by the United States Shipping Board.

The radio service on shore has increased to such an extent that this bureau now maintains approximately 210 stations.

The bureau has charge of the machinery equipment, supply, and maintenance of all naval aeroplanes, flying boats, sea

FIVE FIRMS ARE PENALIZED BY THE FOOD ADMINISTRATION

The United States Food Administration issues the following:

Hearings given three Michigan firms—the National Grocer Co., of Traverse City, the National Grocer Co., of Jackson, and the Haut Grocery Co., of Charlevoix—disclosed that none of the violations of the Food Administration regulations with which they were charged were intentional, but were due to misunderstanding or misinterpretation of the rules.

Permitted to Contribute.

In lieu of closing for two weeks each the National Grocer Co., of Traverse City, was permitted to make a voluntary contribution of $250 to the American Red Cross; the National Grocer Co., of Jackson, contributed $110 to the War Chest Fund, and the Haut Grocery Co., of Charlevoix, contributed $100 to the American Red Cross.

For violating the rules and regulations of the Food Administration, Brehmer & Nicoll, 397-403 High Street, Detroit, Mich., have been permitted to contribute $100 to the American Red Cross in lieu of more drastic penalty.

License is Revoked.

The license of the Oklahoma Fruit & Melon Growers' Association, of Chickasha, Okla., has been revoked for an unlimited period. The association, dealers in fresh fruits and vegetables, car-load shippers of potatoes, distributors of cottonseed and farmers' stock peanuts, refused to appear for a hearing allowed them to show cause why their license to deal in licensed food commodities should not be revoked for having refused to unload a car of perishables. The rejection occurred before the recent withdrawal of rules relating to fresh fruits and perishables.

sleds, and aircraft generally. Its duty includes also the generation and supply of hydrogen for Navy balloons and the equipment and upkeep of machine tools at the naval air stations and repair bases in the United States and abroad. During the fiscal year 1918 $20,877,700 were allotted, under Navy aviation, for these purposes.

Numerous schools have been established by the Navy Department throughout the country for training mechanics for all classes of vessels and for the aviation service. The machine and hand tool equipment of these schools was installed and is maintained by this bureau.

Repair of Seized Ships.

The swift repair of the German ships taken over by our Government is one of the most striking and dramatic performances in the history of engineering in our Navy. When war was declared 103 of these ships of all classes were thus taken over, and, of these, practically all were found to have been damaged willfully by their German crews.

The grave importance of the speedy repair of these ships is shown by the fact that 20 of the 103 converted to transports can carry 70,000 troops in one trip. The repair work, done at express speed, was one of great magnitude.

DEVELOPMENT OF AVIATION IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY AS SHOWN IN THE REPORT OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER

In his annual report to the Secretary of War Maj. Gen. Squier, chief signal officer, says in part:

The work to May 20, 1918, comprised the development of the Army's aviation program, supply of the Army's telephone, telegraph, radio, and annunciator-buzzer systems, supply of its flag, panel and projector, and other signaling requirements, its pigeon, motorcycle dispatch, meteorological, and time services, and the photographic work for the pictorial history of the war.

The New Division.

On May 20, 1918, an Executive order created the Division of Military Aeronautics and the Bureau of Aircraft Production, and relieved the Signal Corps of its aviation duties, with the exception of the design and manufacture of all radio apparatus required in the Air Service. In their annual reports the officers of the new division and bureau will cover their activities, as all aviation personnel, equipment, and records have been transferred to them by virtue of the above Executive order. Accurate records are available in the new division and bureau created which will enable a minute report of these activities to be prepared at some future time.

It is considered advisable, however, to briefly state some salient facts in this connection which, it is believed, can be safely given at this time.

One of the first steps taken by the Chief Signal Officer at the outbreak of the war was to outline some air program commensurate with the resources of the Nation and the importance of the part to be played by our Army in the war. It was necessary to have this in sufficient detail to form some estimate which could be presented to Congress as a basis for appropriations of funds to begin this work. A program was formulated and certain general estimates prepared to inaugurate the work, and in due course Congress appropriated the sum of $640,000,000 for the purpose. This money became available July 24, 1917.

Conditions at Beginning of War.

Due to long years of practical neglect of aeronautics since the Wright brothers brought out the original flying machine, the outbreak of war found the United States with but a handful of flyers and very few training machines. There was practically no aviation industry in this country, and the number of professional men trained as aeronautical engineers and designers was so small as to be practically negligible.

How, then, was this problem to be met? Within a few days after the outbreak of war, without proceeding through the regular diplomatic channels, an appeal was made to the military attaches of France, England, and Italy to send to this country forthwith the most experienced and trained flyers, aeronautical engineers, and designers who could be spared to assist us in this work. As a result, within a very short time there arrived a number of foreign officers from these countries, who reported for duty officially to the Chief of Staff and were immediately placed on the working staff of the Chief Signal Officer, directly in his office. Special authority was obtained from Congress to pay the mileage of these officers sent here for duty, and they were utilized in every possible way from the beginning in developing both a system of schools and the materiel required. Simultaneously a strong technical commission was sent to Europe.

Within a very few days after the outbreak of war an arrangement was made between the War Department and Canada by which the United States was to receive the designs worked out for flying fields; and in order to hasten the training of our aviators during the construction of our training schools, American cadets were sent to Canada, France, and Italy to be trained in their flying schools. In addition to this an arrangement was made by which 10 flying squadrons of the Air Service were to be trained by the British Government and also equipped with machines and transport complete and ready for service at the front, in exchange for providing flying facilities for the Royal Flying Corps of Canada during the winter months. This resulted in the movement of the Royal Flying Corps establishment to the new fields constructed at Fort Worth, Tex. This exchange also resulted in a tremendous stimulus being given to our own flying schools, which in the meantime had been completed, as it furnished a standard of training in our midst which served as a pacemaker to our own cadets.

Rapid Growth of Service.

For the period of 14 months from the outbreak of the war to the end of May, when the aviation section of the Signal Corps was turned over to the new Division of Military Aeronautics and the Bureau of Aircraft Production, the following table shows briefly the increase effected:

	Apr. 1, 1917.	May 31, 1918.	Increase (per cent).
Officers.....	52	16,084	30,939
Enlisted men.....	1,109	147,932	13,440
Civilian employees.....	219	9,838	4,630

It will be seen from the above that the Signal Corps turned over to the Division of Military Aeronautics and the Bureau of Aircraft Production 16,084 officers and 147,932 enlisted men, and that the increase from April 1, 1917, to the time of this transfer was 31,000 per cent for officers and 13,000 per cent for enlisted men. Of these, there were 7,938 officer flyers who successfully graduated from the ground and flying schools, an increase for the period of 15,246 per cent in the commissioned flying personnel. The statement on personnel data gives the details of these increases. There were 167 deaths due to flying accidents of the year in the United States, or one to every 147,840 miles of recorded flight, a lower ratio of deaths than that of our allies.

In reporting upon the accomplishments of the year it must not be overlooked that the greatest thing done, in a fundamental way, was the creation of an industry capable of supplying the needs of the future for aircraft and aircraft accessories, there being now engaged in this work about 350 concerns, employing an industrial army of 200,000 men and women. This accomplishment is all the greater when it is realized that everything pertaining to aircraft equipment is of a highly technical nature, extremely difficult to produce.

Overseas Plane Production.

Out of the appropriation available our allies produced in their factories the following planes for American units:

	Training.	Battle.
December.....	394	5
1918.
January.....	196	4
February.....	233	90
March.....	130	98
April.....	122	99
May.....	11	299
June.....	118	315
Total.....	1,204	910

The supply and equipment of the balloon organizations have been adequate to the service.

Expenditures During Year.

During the 12 months ended June 30, 1918, there was expended a total of about $373,000,000. From this should be deducted approximately $165,000,000 spent for completing training fields and for training and operation purposes in this country and abroad. This leaves a balance of about $208,000,000 expended in obtaining these items:

Airplanes.....	$8,488
Engines.....	12,626
Balloons.....	411
Instruments of various kinds.....	115,655
Hangars.....	2,377
Squadron equipments.....	379
Items of aviators' clothing.....	317,353
Items of motor transport.....	33,909

In addition to this it should be remembered that the expenditure of this sum does not bear a direct relation to the cost of the articles produced, for the reason that much of it is locked up in inventories of uncompleted articles and in facilities for production which will ultimately reduce the cost of additional articles. Out of the appropriation of $640,000,000 there was then a balance of approximately $267,000,000 unexpended, which should in time produce the estimates of material upon which the original program was based.

The Liberty Engine.

It is unnecessary to repeat the story of the liberty engine, although many of the details are yet to be told. The whole conception of a standardized American engine, utilizing the special American genius for quantity production, for service not only in the program of the United

DEVELOPMENT OF AVIATION IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY

States but for universal service for all of the allies, was a national undertaking which for daring and farsightedness, it is believed, will be an increasing cause of pride for the American people. On October 12, 1918, the completion of the 10,000th liberty engine was celebrated in Detroit. There is no possible yardstick to measure the present and potential value of the liberty engine. It can not be measured by any money standard. One has only to consider what would be the result at this moment of subtracting from the allied air programs the liberty engines as a whole to obtain some idea of this accomplishment.

The American-made DeHaviland battle plane, modified to receive the liberty engine, is at the moment recognized as one of the best battle planes anywhere on the western front, and the delivery of these planes in France has already overtaken for the moment the creation of the necessary facilities and personnel for their use.

The development of a fabric which can be furnished by America in required quantities and at price slightly over half that of the formerly used linen fabric, of which there was a limited supply, is another achievement of American ingenuity and enterprise.

The creation of special radio apparatus, the details of which can not be mentioned here, permitting new control of the operations of airplanes en masse, is another contribution to the credit of American engineers and American manufacturers.

Depending Upon United States.

In short, it was always the general allied cause which controlled the decisions in founding this industry, rather than the needs of the United States alone, and this is obviously the only correct point of view. After four years of war, in which the United States entered but a year and a half ago, the allies are depending largely upon America, to a greater and greater degree as the days pass, for the castor oil for their engines, the fabric to cover the planes, and the dope with which to treat the fabric, the spruce and fir to make their planes, and the engines to propel them.

FUEL ADMINISTRATION ORDERS RELATING TO PRICES OF COKE

An order providing that in localities where anthracite is obtainable the prices to dealers of by-product coke for distribution by them in less than carload lots or for household purposes shall not exceed the established maximum prices of gas coke sold under the same conditions, is announced by the United States Fuel Administration.

The order becomes effective January 1 and applies to prices at point of production. It was stated that its effect would be to lower the maximum prices of by-product coke, which already is selling at less than these prices in some localities.

Another order also effective January 1 established definitely that in localities where anthracite coal is obtainable the prices to dealers of gas coke for distribution in less-than-carload lots or for delivery direct to consumers for household purposes shall be the same as the lowest price for a 2,000-pound ton of stove anthracite at the mines plus the lowest freight rate to the point where the coke is produced.

This order followed receipt of information that in some places the standard 2,000-pound ton of coke was being compared for price-fixing purposes with the anthracite ton of 2,240 pounds, and that question had been raised as to what anthracite price should be taken for comparison. The order makes it clear that for comparative purposes the ton shall be 2,000 pounds of coal and coke alike, and that the lowest anthracite price in the district taking the lowest freight rate to the point of coke production is meant.

Health Conditions at Army Camps Within the United States As Reported to the Surgeon General for Week Ending Dec. 20

The War Department authorizes the following:

Herewith is a detailed report on the health conditions of troops in the United States<sup>1</sup> for the week ended December 20. The report of the Division of Sanitation to the Surgeon General of the Army for that week is as follows:

the larger camps, not a single case was reported for the week.

Camps Lee and Travis are the only larger camps reporting more than 100 cases for the week.

Pneumonia admissions also are fewer than last week. Camp Lewis leads all camps in the number of new cases (108). Camps Travis, Eustis, Funston, and Devens are next in order in this respect.

A few cases (24) of scarlet fever are reported from Camp Funston.

There were 323 deaths from all causes during the week, against 398 deaths for the week preceding. There was a marked reduction in the numerical strength of troops in the United States, owing to which the death rate for the week (13.7) becomes practically the same as last week (14.9). The noneffective rate (40.4) is higher than last week (38.7), caused chiefly by the reduction in the strength of command. The admission rate is declining.

Special diseases were reported as follows:

<sup>1</sup> First figure in this column for each camp gives the total number of new cases during the week; the figure in parentheses is the number of other cases which were contracted during the week by men in that camp's command at the time of contracting the disease. The difference, therefore, is the number of cases first reported during the week which were either (a) cases brought from civilian life by recruits, or (b) cases brought by men transferred from other camps to the camp under which the case is reported, or (c) old cases which have previously evaded detection. An interrogation point signifies that the report from that camp did not segregate cases contracted at the camp from other cases.

2. Divisional camps.—Camps McClellan, Hancock, and Bowie lead all camps of this group in pneumonia prevalence for the week. The present numerical strength of this group is approximately 212,000.

There were 50 deaths in camps of this group, 11 of which are charged to Camp Hancock.

3. Cantonments.—Influenza is reported from all camps of this group, excepting Camps Custer, Jackson, and Johnston.

Pneumonia continues to prevail in all camps. The highest incidence of this disease is reported from Camps Lewis, Travis, Eustis, and Funston.

4. Departmental and other troops.—This group has the highest death rate for the week, due chiefly to the relatively high incidence of pneumonia at aviation stations, and the inclusion of all deaths occurring at general hospitals in the United States in this group.

There were 68 deaths reported during the week from aviation stations, with a total strength of command of approximately 103,000.

Vast Expansion of the Engineer Corps Due to War Shown in Annual Report

The annual report of the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, is one of the most voluminous documents of the kind ever issued by the Government, containing nearly 2,000 pages. A very brief synopsis follows:

Including the officers of the Corps of Engineers, Regular Army; temporary Engineer officers of the Regular Army; the National Guard Engineer officers; the Engineer Officers' Reserve Corps; the Engineer officers, National Army; and the Railway Transportation Corps; and making proper deductions for those persons holding commissions in both the Regular Army and in the National Army, there were on June 30, 1918, a total of 7,963 Engineer officers. During the fiscal year 521 other Engineer officers were transferred to and accepted commissions in other branches of the service.

At the end of the fiscal year the approximate total enlisted strength of Engineer units was 214,274, of whom approximately 130,000 had already embarked for foreign service.

The number of officers of the regular service now engaged in construction work is very much smaller than has customarily been found necessary. This is, of course, due to the great demand for regular Engineer officers for strictly war work, but with the assistance of retired officers formerly of the Corps of Engineers, who have patriotically returned to duty, and by the aid of trained civilian assistants, it has been found possible to satisfactorily carry on during the war the reduced amount of construction work in this country.

Benefits of Prior Training.

The excellent results which have been obtained since the war began by officers of the Corps of Engineers in organization, supply and construction, both in the United States and France, must be attributed to the prior training such officers had received, and this training has been rendered possible to a very great extent by the action of Congress in placing under the charge of the Corps of Engineers the river-and-harbor improvements and certain other civil work of the Nation. Through such work opportunity has been given for the development of officers of the Corps of Engineers in taking heavy responsibilities, in the habit of making weighty decisions, in meeting sudden emergencies, in the organization, operation, and care of large bodies of men, and in working with men not familiar with or subject to the discipline and regulations of military life. In addition, these civil works have given to the officers of the Corps of Engineers the practice necessary for any professional man, practice which could not be obtained in their ordinary military duties in times of peace. Experience has shown that the adopted practice of having a young engineer officer on entering the service spend his first two or three years in strictly military work and thereafter have tours of duty alternately in civil construction and in military work, keeps the officer fresh and interested in his work; gives him a well-rounded mental and professional development, and produces an engineer officer fitted for any service the war may demand.

Help of Retired Officers.

The work of the Corps of Engineers in the present war has been greatly assisted by the patriotic spirit of retired officers formerly of the Corps of Engineers who have returned to active duty. Sixteen such officers are now in active service, including two major generals and four brigadier generals.

During the fiscal year a large number of Engineer officers were commissioned in advanced grades in the National Army. The promotions resulting left in the grades of first and second lieutenant a number of vacancies which could not be filled by promotion, and advantage was therefore taken of the laws by the appointment as temporary officers of deservingly noncommissioned officers of the regular Engineer service. A total of 71 such appointments were made.

At the beginning of the fiscal year the actual commissioned strength of the Corps of Engineers was only about half of the legally authorized strength. Owing to this fact, and to the great demand for officers of the Corps of Engineers for other than engineer work and to assist in the organization of Engineer units of the National Army, it was not possible to officer the Engineer units of the Regular Army entirely by officers of the Regular service. As far as possible, the senior officers in such regiments are Regular officers. The vacancies remaining which could not be filled by the detail of Regular officers have been filled by the appointment as temporary officers of deservingly noncommissioned officers and by the details to active service of officers in the Engineer Reserve Corps, and by the assignment to duty in these regiments of Engineer officers of the National Army.

Throughout the fiscal year the Third Engineers remained in our foreign possessions, distributed about equally between the Philippine Islands, the Hawaiian Islands, and the Panama Canal Zone. Of the other Regular Engineer organizations, the First, Second, Fourth, Sixth, and Seventh Regiments were sent to France during the fiscal year, and at the end of the fiscal year the Fifth Regiment was ready for such service and was awaiting orders. The two mounted battalions, known as the Eighth and Ninth Engineers, have been on duty at the Mexican border throughout the fiscal year.

Of the Regular Engineer organizations which went abroad during the fiscal year, several have already taken part in active field operations. The Sixth Regiment especially, which was serving with the British Army, received special commendation for its work in assisting to repulse the German drive during March.

Combatant and Noncombatant.

Of the special Engineer troops a few may be considered as noncombatant, but all must be considered as combatant troops whose duties are such as to call them into or near the front line, for all such troops are liable at any time to be called upon to take part in actual battle and have been trained accordingly. This is true not only of the sapper troops but also of the gas and flame, railway, highway, mining, camouflage, ponton, searchlight, and sound and sight ranging troops, and occasionally even of others. In many cases special Engineer troops have been actually called into action, and the Eleventh, Twelfth, and Fourteenth Regiments especially have received commendation from our allies for the parts they have taken in battle.

Railway Transportation Corps.

The first Engineer regiments to go overseas were nine railway units originally intended for service with our British and French allies. Some of these regiments were actually sent to serve with the British and French Armies, but the majority of them, with certain other unattached Engineer officers, were utilized with the American Expeditionary Forces. In October instructions were given to organize in France a railway-transportation service based upon the railway regiments referred to and Engineer officers who had had railway experience.

Subsequently, this organization was much enlarged and in France became an organization independent of the other Engineer organizations.

Record Orders for Candy and Chewing Gum for Army

The War Department authorizes the following from the office of the Director of Purchase and Storage:

The largest single purchase of chewing gum in the history of the Army has just been made by the Subsistence Division, 11,686,000 packages of the most popular and best known brands making up the order. At the same time the largest single order of candy on record was given, calling for 12,000,000 pounds.

Both the candy and chewing gum are for the overseas forces. The very highest grades of candy have been included in the awards and will consist of bar chocolate, sweet chocolate, chocolate vanilla bars, almond bars, and peanut bars.

PASSENGER MILEAGE INCREASE ON RAILROADS OVER LAST YEAR

Nearly a million more passengers, or 997,484, were carried 1 mile over the Government-controlled railroads for the month of September, 1918, compared with the same period in 1917, according to a report made public by Director General McAdoo.

The figures show that during the month of September, 1918, there were 3,943,709,135 persons who traveled 1 mile over the railroads, while for September, 1917, there were but 3,942,711,651, showing an increase of 0.03 per cent in travel for September, 1918, over the same month for 1917.

Figures for Nine Months.

For the nine months ended September 30, 1918, 32,586,390,878 persons were carried 1 mile, while for the corresponding period in 1917 but 28,513,155,775 were transported 1 mile. For the eight-months period 4,073,235,163 more persons traveled 1 mile in 1918 than in 1917, or an increase of 14.3 per cent.

The southern region, according to the report, shows the most substantial increase in passenger travel for the periods mentioned. For the month of September, 1918, 608,683,037 were carried 1 mile over the railroads in this section, while for the same month of 1917 but 486,902,866 were transported, an increase of 25 per cent for September, 1918. For the nine months ended September 30, 1918, 4,904,443,248 passengers traveled 1 mile in the southern region, while for the corresponding period of 1917 but 3,503,476,296 were transported. This shows an increase of 39.7 per cent in passenger travel for the nine months of 1918, compared to the same period of 1917 in the southern region.

In the Eastern Region.

While in the eastern region there was a decrease in the number of passengers carried 1 mile of 75,794,706 for September, 1918, as compared with the same month of 1917, for the nine months ended September 30 the increase in passengers carried 1 mile in the same district for 1918 over 1917 amounted to 403,810,471.

In the northwestern region there was a decrease in the number of passengers carried 1 mile for the month of September, 1918, over the same month in 1917 of 75,436,595. The report shows, however, that for the nine-month period there was an increase in passenger traffic for 1918 over 1917 in this region of 7,073,988 carried 1 mile.

Central Western Region.

The same situation prevailed in the central western region. For September, 1917, there were 714,939,429 passengers carried 1 mile, as against 651,787,988 for the same month in 1918, a decrease for September, 1918, of 63,151,441. But for the nine-month period there was an increase of 595,052,680 in 1918 over 1917 in passengers carried 1 mile in this same region.
