STEPS TAKEN TO ACQUIRE THE CAPE COD CANAL ARE OUTLINED IN A STATEMENT BY THE SECRETARY OF WAR

REFUSAL BY OWNERS OF $8,250,000 OFFER

Attorney General Is Then Asked to Begin Condemnation Proceedings as Last Resort Under Law, Mr. Baker Explains—Status of Prisoners at Fort Leavenworth Discussed.

Press statement by the Secretary of War, February 6, 1919:

"The legislation on the subject of the Cape Cod Canal required the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of Commerce to pass upon the question as to whether it was desirable to acquire the Cape Cod Canal by the Federal Government. We three met and discussed the question, and came to the conclusion that it was desirable; we were unanimous about that.

Next Step Provided by Law.

"The law next provided that in the event of it being decided by the three Secretaries as desirable to secure the canal property, the Secretary of War should undertake to negotiate a price at which the property could be bought, and if he could agree with the owners of the canal property that he should make a contract for the purchase of the canal, subject to its ratification by Congress as to the price. The act further provided that the Engineer Corps should make studies as to the value of the canal, and that the negotiations as to the price by the Secretary of War should be informed by the studies made by the Engineer Corps. Very elaborate studies were made by expert accountants in New York and one or two boards of the Engineer Corps, and on the basis of their findings I undertook to negotiate a price, and finally offered the Cape Cod Canal owners $8,250,000, which they declined to accept. I was unable to offer them any more, and then took the last step which the law provided in the event the Secretary of War was not able to reach an agreement, and I asked the Attorney General to begin condemnation proceedings and reported the fact to Congress."

The Secretary stated that he did not know anything of the details of the so-

TREATS ALSACE AND LORRAINE AS BEING STATES OF FRANCE

Alien Property Custodian Orders Demands Against Residents After January 8 Withdrawn.

A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, makes the following announcement:

In view of the order of the War Trade Board under date of January 8, 1919, authorizing all persons in the United States to trade and communicate with persons residing in the States of Alsace and Lorraine, the Alien Property Custodian will not hereafter require reports of property belonging to persons residing in Alsace and Lorraine, unless such persons fall within the enemy class for reasons other than their residence. In other words, residents of Alsace and Lorraine as of January 8, 1919, and thereafter will be treated as residents of France.

Demands for such property issued by this office before January 8, 1919, must be complied with, but demands issued after that date will be withdrawn and no further demands for such property will be issued.

BELGIUM ASKS U. S. TO LOAN RAILWAY ENGINES AND CARS

The Belgian Government, through the Minister of Railways, M. Renkin, has advised the American Legation at Brussels of Belgium's great need of rolling stock.

The American Army in France had received 359 locomotives which the Belgian Government placed at its disposal, of which 187 have been returned but 172 are still in possession of the Army. M. Renkin recommended that the United States lend the Belgian Government 400 locomotives and 2,000 passenger coaches in addition to the return of the Belgian rolling stock now in use by the American Army.

Coffins Being Rented For the Dead at Moscow

Unofficial advices to the State Department state that practically all stores of Moscow have been municipalized as a rule without compensation to owners. Eggs are quoted at 11 roubles, and matches at 4 roubles per box. Individual coffins are reported to be no longer used, but are being rented out. Mortality is rated as very high, with typhus, grippe, and erysipelas especially being prevalent and overcrowding the hospitals.

NO DELAY TO SOLDIER LETTERS WHEN CORRECTLY ADDRESSED, SAYS CABLE FROM PERSHING

QUOTES POUCH RECORDS REPORTS

No Accumulation of Incoming or Outgoing First-Class Mail at French Terminals, According to Director of Postal Service.

The War Department authorizes publication of the following cabled communication from Gen. Pershing in reference to statements published in the United States relative to accumulation of mail in American Expeditionary Forces:

"Col. Howe, Director of Postal Express Service, submits the following: 'There is no accumulation of correctly addressed mail arriving in France from the States. First-class mail moves on scheduled passenger trains and reaches present rail heads of army of occupation in six days from time of arrival in France. There is no delay or accumulation in France of mail bound for the States.

Revealed by Pouch Records.

"'Statistics taken from pouch records of Bordeaux terminal by civil postal authorities and submitted to this service shows that it takes an average of 4½ days for mail dispatched from divisional rail heads to reach Bordeaux terminal, and an average of 2.20 days for mail dispatched from fixed post offices on line of communications to reach Bordeaux terminal. Bordeaux terminal report their floors are cleared of mail after each shipment to the States. If there is any delay in mail from France other than these figures show, it is on the water or elsewhere.

Mail Incorrectly Addressed.

"'Mail arriving in France incorrectly addressed requires comparison with records of Statistical Section and readdressing from these records. The quantity of this incorrectly addressed letter mail at the central post office undergoing redirection is 1,210 sacks. This quantity could be placed in one American car. Over 100,000 line pages of this mail are being redirected daily. The quantity of dead letters shipped to the States during January, up to the 26th instant, as taken from records submitted to this service by civil postal agent at Bordeaux terminal, was 126 sacks.'

"PERSHING."

AMERICAN CONSULATE BURNS.

A dispatch to the State Department from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, states that the American consular agency at San Pedro Sula was consumed in flames on January 31, including all official records.

CHANGES IN BELGIAN IMPORT REGULATIONS ARE ANNOUNCED

Restrictions Are Removed on All But Limited Number of Commodities.

The War Trade Board announces in a new ruling (W. T. B. R. 585), for the information of exporters in the United States, that they have been informed of the following announced changes in the import regulations of Belgium:

The import restrictions have been removed on all commodities imported into Belgium, with the exception of foodstuffs, tobacco, wines, spirits, malt, shoes, clothing and accessories, cloth, perfumery and accessories, and coal.

Application Requirements.

Previous regulations issued by the Belgian Government, providing that licenses for the importation of foodstuffs, clothing, textiles, and tobacco must be applied for from the ministry of industry, labor, and revictualing, have been amended to provide that it is necessary to apply to the above-mentioned ministry only when the application covers sugar, tobacco (raw or manufactured), wines, spirits, malts, barley, oats, and cereals to make bread.

No Belgian import license is required before shipping oats, sugar, tobacco, and wines if such goods are sent to public bonded warehouses in Antwerp or Brussels, but import licenses will have to be obtained for the release of such goods from the warehouses.

Small Parcels Exempt.

Licenses for the importation into Belgium of shoes, clothing and accessories, cloth, perfumery and accessories, and coal are issued by the ministry of economic affairs.

Applications for all import licenses should be made on special blanks and, if possible, by representatives in Belgium of American firms.

Parcels weighing less than 2 kilos (about 4.4 pounds) are exempt from import license, also parcels sent by individuals to their families in Belgium, when the articles contained therein are not meant for trade.

FOUND DEAD IN FLANDERS.

Body of Lieut. MacLeish, U. S. N. R. F., Discovered on a Farm.

Secretary Daniels authorizes the following:

The Navy Department has received a dispatch from Admiral Sims stating that the body of Lieut. Kenneth MacLeish, United States Naval Reserve Force, reported as missing since October 14, has been found on a farm in West Flanders, belonging to August Clement, at a place called Schoore, where the body was buried. Arrangements have been made to transfer the body to a military cemetery at Calais.

Lieut. MacLeish when last seen was a pilot with a squadron of American fliers, and was with them in combat with a number of enemy planes.

Lieut. MacLeish was a resident of Illinois; father, Andrew MacLeish, 459 Longwood Avenue, Glencoe, Ill.

12,192 Carried by Cruisers and 7,528 by Battleships, Report Shows.

Secretary Daniels authorizes the following:

The Navy Department has received a report from the commander of the cruiser force (Atlantic) showing the number of troops brought back to the United States during January by American vessels, including the battleships and cruisers in transport service. These figures do not include the troops brought back in ships belonging to other nations:

The report follows:

"Ninety-seven thousand and thirty-nine passengers were returned to the United States by ships of cruiser and transport force during January. Of this number 12,192 were carried by cruisers and 7,528 by battleships. The total rated capacity of vessels arriving was 105,593.

STATEMENT ON STEPS TAKEN TO ACQUIRE CAPE COD CANAL

called strike at Fort Leavenworth, but said:

"Each prisoner has and exercises the right of immediate appeal to the Secretary of War. Before a man is sent to Leavenworth his case comes to me for review, and I spend a great portion of my time going over court-martial records. After a man has gotten to Leavenworth, if he writes to me that he thinks he has been there long enough, the request is invariably sent to Col. Rice for report, and the case is decided upon its merits. I have had a great many cases of this kind, and have commuted the sentences of a great many men for both military and civil offenses.

"With regard to the statement that the men are complaining of the inequality of sentences imposed for the same offenses, this occurs also in civil courts—one judge will sentence a man to 10 years for a certain offense and another judge will only impose a two-year sentence. It depends upon the culpability of the man and not entirely upon the offense charged.

Change in Military Laws.

"Referring to the agitation for a change in the military laws, this whole subject is being deeply studied, and I told Mr. Page, president of the American Bar Association, with whom I have talked about it, that if he would appoint a committee of the American Bar Association to confer with Gen. Crowder and to go over the records, we would greatly appreciate their advice and counsel.

"There is now being held in Washington a conference on military discipline of the commanders of the different military prisons, Gen. Harris, Gen. Crowder, and others, with the object of comparing experience and making suggestions with a view to such modifications, if any are deemed desirable, in our system of prison administration, and making our prisons as modern, remedial, and helpful as possible."

BOARD TO REVIEW THE RECORDS OF ALL ARMY FLYING OFFICERS

Appointed to Pass Upon Qualifications and Merits for Ratings and Pay Increases.

The War Department authorizes the following from the Director of Military Aeronautics:

A board of officers to pass upon the qualifications and merits of flying officers who have distinguished themselves in action has been appointed by Maj. Gen. William L. Kenly, Director of Military Aeronautics. The board will eventually review the records of all flying officers who were in action, with a view to awarding them such ratings as their achievements and abilities may warrant. These ratings will carry an increase in flying pay.

To date only the pursuit or fighting pilots have received any recognition; this being in the form of a list of 63 fliers who have been credited with shooting down five or more enemy aircraft each, a list which is not complete. The new board will not only consider the fighting pilots and observers, but also all officers who were on other details just as dangerous, tedious, and often requiring a greater amount of skill and practice, though not as spectacular. The work of the pilots and observers in the Day and Night Bombardment Squadrons, Observation and Reconnaissance Squadrons, and Balloon Companies, which included artillery control and photograph work, will now be reviewed and appropriate awards made in the form of ratings, carrying an increase in flying pay.

WASH OF SOLDIER PATIENTS PART OF "HOSPITAL LAUNDRY"

The War Department authorizes the following statement from the office of the Surgeon General:

Changes in the manual of the Medical Department announced by the Surgeon General of the Army provide for the washing of all soiled clothing of patients in all Army hospitals in this country or in France as a part of the "hospital laundry," and therefore to be taken care of by the hospital authorities.

Paragraphs 222 and 267 of the Manual have been changed so as to define the hospital laundry as "the washable clothing of patients under treatment in hospitals," and to further state that "the soiled clothing of patients will be washed as a part of the hospital laundry."

Notification of these two changes has been sent to all department surgeons, camp surgeons, surgeons at independent posts, at ports of embarkation, to all general and base hospitals, and to the chief surgeon, American Expeditionary Forces, France.

MILK AND PORK EXPORT LICENSE TO FRANCE NOW FREELY GRANTED

The War Trade Board, in consultation with the Food Administration, announces in a new ruling (W. T. B. R. 587), that licenses will hereafter be issued freely for the exportation to France of pork and pork products, and condensed, dehydrated, evaporated, powdered, and preserved milk, as these goods have, by action of the French Government, been placed on the list of commodities which may be imported without governmental restrictions.

Exporters who desire to ship such milk and pork and pork products to France need, therefore, no longer make their commitments through the Allied Provisions Export Commission. It will be a condition of the issuance of a license to export pork and pork products to France that the application for export license must have attached thereto, before being filed with the War Trade Board, a certificate from the United States Food Administration to the effect that the commodity described in such application has been sold for export at a price approved by the United States Food Administration.

British Import License For Sheep and Goat Skins

The War Trade Board announces, in a new ruling (W. T. B. R. 584), for the information of exporters in the United States, that they have been informed of the following announced changes in the import regulations of Great Britain:

General licenses have been issued, and will remain in force until July 1, 1919, for the importation, without special license, of tanned goat and sheep skins and dressed sheep and lamb skins.

SUGAR BOARD MOVES OFFICES.

The United States Sugar Equalization Board, which has for some time had its offices in the Food Administration Building, in Washington, has removed to New York City. Its permanent quarters from now on will be at 111 Wall Street, New York City.

Passengers Saved From Burned Army Balloon

The War Department authorizes the following:

All the passengers in the free balloon reported burned near Salisbury, Md., Wednesday afternoon, February 5, are safe, according to telegraphic advice received from Capt. L. B. Montfort by the Chief of the Balloon and Airship Branch of the Army Air Service. The balloon left Potomac Park, Washington, D. C., at 10.35 Wednesday morning, piloted by A. Leo Stevens, Aeronaut, with Lieut. Cols. Dargue and Hunter, and Capts. Phillips and Montfort as passengers. The details of the accident are not known to the Division of Military Aeronautics. Col. Dargue telegraphed that the entire party escaped injury.

Regulations Governing Exportation of Cheese

The War Trade Board announces, in a new ruling (W. T. B. R. 581), after consultation with the United States Food Administration, that they will now consider applications for licenses to export cheese to all countries except Great Britain, France, and Italy. Purchases of these commodities for shipment to Great Britain, France, and Italy will continue to be made by the Allied Provisions Export Commission, acting on behalf of the Governments of these countries.

Exporters should acquaint themselves with the import restrictions of the countries of destination before consummation of their business, as in some countries the regulations which were in force prior to the signing of the armistice are still in effect.

PAY FOR HOLLAND'S SOLDIERS AFTER DISCHARGE FROM ARMY

Commercial Attaché Paul L. Edwards at The Hague reports:

Everything possible is being done in Holland to forestall idleness among the soldiers of the Dutch Army, which is now being demobilized. The Government has just announced that soldiers upon whom others are dependent for support will receive full pay for a period of 60 days from the date of their release from military service. Those upon whom no one is dependent will nevertheless be assisted financially by the national relief committee.

As each soldier leaves service, he will receive one new pair of shoes and one new suit of underclothing from the military stores. In case of necessity soldiers returning from the front will also be able to obtain from the national relief committee reimbursement for expenses connected with the moving of their families and household effects back to their original place of residence. Special measures are to be taken to lend temporary financial support to members of the class of smaller tradesmen. Arrangements for such assistance will be made by the national relief committee, and necessary funds will be furnished by the State.

The Government is urging all employers to take back into their employment on full pay soldiers who are now returning from the army. In cases where employers feel themselves financially unable to do this, it is urged that the returning men should receive part pay. Such employees will also be able to secure further financial assistance from the national relief committee.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES BRIEFLY TOLD

SENATE.

After a spirited discussion, participated in by Senator Pomerene, chairman of the Elections Committee, and Senator Townsend, Republican, of Michigan, there were indications when the Senate adjourned last evening that a compromise would be reached on the pending resolution for an immediate investigation of the Ford-Newberry senatorial contest in Michigan that would be acceptable to both sides. Republicans have objected to an investigation by this Senate, contending that such a right belongs only to the Senate which will convene after March 3 next. Leaders are considering a plan under which the immediate action to be taken would be restricted to the preservation of evidence upon which the next Senate might make its decision. Senator Townsend said such an arrangement would be satisfactory to the opponents of the resolution in its present shape.

Discussion of the British import embargo order was resumed yesterday afternoon briefly, but with Senators on both sides of the chamber asserting that England was acting within her rights in defending her industries and contending that it was nothing more than the United States had done in the past or would do in the future if conditions require it. The resolution of Senator Weeks went to the calendar, where it can only be called again before the Senate by a direct vote. Senator Johnson, of California, made an unsuccessful effort to call up his resolution declaring it to be the sense of the Senate that American troops should be immediately recalled from Russia. The House bill, giving soldiers who served in the present war or on the Mexican border homestead privileges similar to those of the Spanish and other war veterans, was passed.

Director General Hines, of the Railroad Administration, concluded his statement before the Interstate Commerce Committee, and the spokesmen of the railroad labor organizations began the discussion of proposed railroad legislation to-day before the committee. Secretary Baker was a witness before the Buildings Committee that is investigating the Chicago speedway hospital project. He discussed general questions, but had no knowledge of the details of this transaction, as he was abroad at the time. The Commerce Committee, at the solicitation of Senator Calder, incorporated an amendment in the rivers and harbors appropriation bill authorizing a survey of the practicability of a seagoing ship canal between the Great Lakes and the Hudson River. The same committee designated Senators Calder, Ransdell, and Sheppard as a subcommittee to investigate the difference in cost between the operation of American ships and those of other maritime countries. The Propaganda Committee held a session to arrange its plans for continuing its work under the enlarged authority recently granted. Albert Rhys Williams, a writer recently returned from Russia, and who addressed the meeting in Washington condemned in the Senate debate Tuesday of this week, was summoned as a witness. He demanded that he be heard in open session. He was told to hold himself in readiness to appear upon the call of the committee. The Banking Committee postponed until next Tuesday consideration of the nomination of John Skelton Williams to be Comptroller of the Currency. Acting Chairman Hitchcock stated that a number of witnesses opposed to the reappointment of Mr. Williams had asked to be heard. Testimony in connection with the inquiry into the packing industry was continued before the Agricultural committee with Henry Veeder, counsel for Swift & Co., on the stand. He admitted that certain campaign contributions had been made by the packing concern in congressional campaigns.

HOUSE.

Consideration of the naval appropriation bill continued until a late hour last night. The House agreed to the increase of the enlisted personnel of the Navy to 225,000. On objection by Mr. Butler, of Pennsylvania, a member of the Naval Committee, the proposed increase in the Marine Corps from 17,400 to 27,297 was struck out, Mr. Butler basing his objection upon the contention that the reorganization of the Marine Corps should be undertaken at a later time. The appropriation for naval aviation was reduced from $25,000,000 to $15,000,000, with an amendment that no part of the fund should be used in the construction of any factory or building for the manufacture of aircraft. The provision making the rates of pay during the present war permanent went out on a point of order by Mr. Stafford, of Wisconsin.

The war revenue bill conference report was laid before the House by Chairman Kitchin, of the Ways and Means Committee. It may be called up for consideration on Saturday. The bill as agreed to in conference is estimated to yield slightly more than six billions this year and about four billions annually thereafter.

William A. Glasgow, jr., counsel for the Food Administration, before the Interstate Commerce Committee, denied that charges of Edward C. Lasater that Food Administrator Hoover had been guided by the five big packers in the administration of his office. Before the committee that is investigating the activities of the National Security League, former Senator Elihu Root, of New York, explained his connection with the organization and indorsed the fight made by it against Henry Ford and Miss Rankin, Member of the present House, on the grounds of patriotism.

Secretary Glass transmitted to the House a War Department deficiency estimate of $350,000 for the purchase of additional land for the Walter Reed Hospital.

The Foreign Affairs Committee modified the Gallagher resolution on Ireland and ordered it reported. As thus modified the resolution states "that it is the hope of the Congress of the United States of America that the peace commissioners now sitting in Paris in passing upon the rights of various peoples will favorably consider the claims of Ireland to the right of self-determination."

The Agricultural Committee agreed upon a bill giving the President authority to create a new agency or utilize some existing agency to maintain the Government's guaranteed price of $2.26 for the 1919 wheat crop. The bill proposes a revolving fund of $1,000,000,000.

DR. FARRAND EXECUTIVE HEAD OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of the University of Colorado, has been appointed by President Wilson chairman of the central committee of the American Red Cross and in that capacity will become executive head of that organization.

This announcement was made Saturday simultaneously with another to the effect that the Red Cross war council would retire on March 1, on which date Dr. Farrand will assume his new position.

Dr. Farrand arrived at national headquarters February 1. Until March 1 he will devote his time to acquainting himself with the affairs of the war council and the Red Cross generally before officially assuming the leadership of the organization.

The Original War Council.

The war council was appointed by President Wilson on May 10, 1917, when it became apparent that war relief work on an unprecedented scale would have to be done and that large amounts of money would have to be raised by voluntary contribution for that purpose.

For the purposes of the war the permanent organization of the Red Cross was subordinated to an extent to the war council. The original members of the war council were Henry P. Davison, chairman; Cornelius N. Bliss, jr.; Maj. Grayson M. P. Murphy; Charles D. Norton, and Edward N. Hurley, with William Howard Taft and Eliot Wadsworth, chairman and vice-chairman of the central committee as ex-officio members. Mr. Hurley resigned to become chairman of the Shipping Board; Maj. Murphy resigned to go into active Army service; and Mr. Norton resigned on account of stress of personal affairs. John D. Ryan was appointed to succeed Mr. Hurley. Harvey D. Gibson and George B. Case were appointed to fill the vacancies created by the resignations of Maj. Murphy and Mr. Norton. Subsequently, Mr. Ryan and Mr. Gibson resigned, their places being filled by Jesse H. Jones and George E. Scott.

Dr. Farrand, the new chairman of the central committee, became president of the University of Colorado, January 1, 1914. He was graduated from Princeton in 1888; and in 1891 from the college of physician and surgeons. He studied later in Cambridge, England, and Berlin, specializing in anthropology and psychology and afterwards came to be known as an authority on matters of public health. In 1905 he became the executive secretary of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. He was also treasurer of the American Public Health Association.

Services in France.

On account of Dr. Farrand's standing as an expert in public health matters he was chosen soon after the entry of the United States into the war as director of the tuberculosis work in France of the international health board, serving in that capacity until he returned to this country last week.

In his tuberculosis work in France, Dr. Farrand came in close contact with the operations of the Red Cross, not only in tuberculosis work, but in other relief lines.

ORDER DEFINING "PRODUCER" AND REGULATING CONSIGNMENT OF BITUMINOUS COAL AT MINE

The United States Fuel Administration issues the following:

JANUARY 31, 1919.

The United States Fuel Administrator having, by an order dated January 31, 1919, suspended from and after 7 a. m., February 1, 1919, the operation of the so-called zoning regulations relative to the sale, shipment, and distribution of bituminous coal, and it appearing to said administrator that with no restrictions upon the territorial distribution of said coal there may be heavy consignments thereof to large markets and to railroad rate-breaking points for reconsignment at such markets and points, which will result in congestion of terminal and transportation facilities and delay and hamper the shipment and distribution of bituminous coal to the ultimate consumer thereof, and that it is essential for the better distribution of bituminous coal that the method and shipment thereof should be regulated as hereinafter provided and as has been required since August 30, 1918.

The United States Fuel Administrator, acting under authority of an Executive order of the President of the United States, dated August 23, 1917, appointing said administrator, and of subsequent Executive orders, and in furtherance of the purpose of said orders and of the act of Congress therein referred to and approved August 10, 1917, hereby orders and directs:

(1) That the term "producer of bituminous coal," as hereinafter in this order used, shall include every person, firm, corporation, or associatiou operating as owner, lessee, or purchaser of the entire output of a mine.

(2) That from and after the effective date of this order no producer of bituminous coal shall accept any order for the shipment of such coal unless such order specifies the final consignee and the ultimate destination of such shipment.

(3) That from and after the effective date of this order no producer of bituminous coal shall ship or consign any shipment of such coal except to the final consignee and ultimate destiuation of such shipment.

(4) That from and after the effective date of this order every producer of bituminous coal be, and he hereby is, expressly prohibited from making auy shipment of such coal for purposes of reconsignment.

Provided, however, That nothiug hereinabove contained shall be construed as prohibiting the acceptauce of orders by any producer of bituminous coal for shipment to, or the shipment or consignment of such coal, to the Tidewater Coal Exchange, the Ore & Coal Exchange, or any railroad assembling yard in or near the mining district in which the particular shipment originates, for the purpose of there applying original billing to the final consignee and ultimate destination of such shipment.

This order to become effective at 7 a. m., February 1, 1919.

United States Fuel Administrator.

Separate Hospitals for "Shell-Shock" And Returned Soldiers Treated as Insane As Planned by Surgeon General's Office

The War Department authorizes the following statement from the Office of the Surgeon General:

The clearly defined policy of the Medical Department of the Army from the beginniug of the war has been to differentiate carefully between the nervous, or so-called "shell-shock" cases, and those of the insane or meutally affected, and to treat the two classes in separate institutions.

The necessity of this policy was emphasized by the early experience of England, which country, when plunged into the war, had no special preparation for the reception of the nervous and mental cases which were returned from France in such large numbers. These patients, unclassified aud undistinguished, found their way to the insane asylums. The folly of this soon became apparent aud was corrected; but the lesson was one which made a deep inupressiou on the Medical Department of the Uuited States Army when its turn came to organize methods for the distribution and treatment of patients of these two classes.

Need for Sharp Distinction.

The very first memorandum on this matter which took form in the Office of the Surgeon General defined the absolute necessity of a sharp distinctiou between purely nervous and mental cases. This policy has been followed out strictly in France, where the evacuation and treatment hospitals for the nervous or so-called "shell-shock" cases are along quite different routes from the hospitals for the insane.

This policy of differentiation and segregation undergoes no change on the arrival of returned patients in this country, except that at the ports of debarkation it may be necessary at periods of great stress to keep patients of different classes in the same building for a few days. But immediately after distribution from the ports the policy of classification and segregation is rigidly followed. The cases of nervousness or "shell shock" go to United States Geueral Hospital No. 30, at Plattsburg, N. Y., which has always had more vacant beds than patients and which has never been obliged to refuse admittance to patieuts who should be sent there. A second shell-shock hospital, which had been provided at Carlisle, Pa., was found unnecessary and was not used for this purpose.

Insane patients are sent to special hospitals devoted to their exclusive care, or to special wards in certain general hospitals, the choice of which hospital being decided so far as possible with reference to the location of the patient's home.

All commanding officers at points for special treatment of the insane are directed in all except incurable cases to give the patients the benefit of four months' treatment in the military hospitals. This rule was initiated for the purpose of removing any distinction between temporary mental disorders and other diseases, so that if the patient recovers within four months of his reception his status on discharge is the same as that of a soldier discharged for any other disease.

Disposition of "Incurable" Cases.

Incurable cases and those in which the treatment is practically certain to extend beyond four months are sent to St. Elizabeths Hospital, as provided by Army Regulations. St. Elizabeths Hospital is under the Department of the Interior, aud beyond the jurisdictiou of the Surgeon General of the Army.

A misconception embedded in the popular idea of shell shock has caused much misunderstanding in regard to these patients. It is that the soldier has been blown up or has been buried by some high explosive, and his whole central nervous system is supposed to have been shattered. Such cases occur; but the probabilities are that of the cases of shell shock that reach this country, less than 5 per cent have suffered any such physical injury. The remainder of the cases are essentially those of nervousness resulting iu a large part from unfitness for the hardships, suffering, and mental stress of expeditiouary campaigns.

Liability to Mistakes.

At the same time to a superficial observation, or even on hurried examination, purely nervous symptoms may be mistaken for those of mental disease, and it was a surprise to medical officers that in the several thousands of cases of this class returned to this country so few mistakes have been made in classification. The mistakes that have occurred have not occurred in the manner popularly supposed, uamely, that shell-shock cases are seut to hospitals for the insane. This has not happened; but at the beginning the opposite did. When the wouuded began to return in large numbers, the commanding officer of General Hospital No. 30, at Plattsburg, complaiued that his patients were hampered by the presence of insaue patients sent there by mistake. Upon notification these mistakes were immediately rectified. There has been no official complaint that shell-shock patients have beeu sent to wards designated for the insane, and a specific iuquiry in this matter, made November 14, 1918, of the superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, showed that only two cases which might be considered as shell shock had been admitted to that hospital up to that time, and both of these had mental symptoms. Subsequent inquiry on January 16, 1919, showed that the facts brought out in the earlier inquiry are still true.

Review of Operating Results of Federalized Railroads Contained in the Annual Report of the Director General

In the chapter of his annual report devoted to operating results the Director General of Railroads says, in part:

In order to understand the operating problems presenting themselves with the inauguration of Federal eontrol it will be necessary to recount some of the potent causes producing the serious conditions of congestion which resulted in the railroads being taken over by the Federal Government, and I will enumerate the steps which were taken to overcome them.

Difficulties Encountered.

1. Accumulation of export freight at North Atlantic terminals, which was reflecting itself immediately in an inability to successfully handle domestic freight. There was no coordination of rail and overseas transportation. The accumulation was chiefly disturbing because it was stationary and frequently comprehended unloading on the ground to be afterwards loaded upon cars and moved to piers. The lack of coordination between rail lines and the overseas carriers was overcome by the creation of the Exports Control Committee, and export freight was brought forward from the interior only when ocean shipping was available.

2. Shortage of motive power. As a result, engines had been kept in service under pressure of necessity which should have been thoroughly overhauled, and one of the immediate effects of the severe winter weather was to render engines of this class entirely unavailable.

3. Heavy building operations by different branches of the Government, the contractors for which ordered materials forwarded far in advance of their ability to receive and unload. There was at one time over 5,000 carloads of piling alone for the Hog Island shipyard in excess of its ability to accept.

Feverish Demand for Materials.

4. On account of the feverish demand for materials of all kinds, manufacturers purchased raw materials from unusual markets in excessive quantities, with the frequent result that arrivals were badly bunched and unloading was slow and difficult. This was particularly true in the heavy manufacturing districts north of the Potomac and east of Pittsburgh.

5. The necessity for giving priority to shipments of Government freight and the lack of a central control, even in a single department, to decide upon the degrees of importance in priority. This had resulted in many instances through the insistence of some energetic officer handling a single class of material in a preference movement being given to freight of minor relative importance.

6. The withdrawal for overseas service of Atlantic coastwise vessels, both of railroad and independent ownership, resulting in a call upon the rail carriers for the transportation of an enormous amount of tonnage which ordinarily moved by water.

Lessons Learned.

Certain general conclusions can safely be drawn from a year's experience of operation of the railroads as one unit. Given average weather conditions, and with the exception of the Pittsburgh gateway, which merits especial treatment, there is no question of the ability of the railroads to transport to destination all of the freight offering, either domestic or for overseas, provided there are facilities for prompt disposition and unloading at destination.

The controlling factor throughout our experience has not been in the road transportation, but at the ultimate destination, and any serious conditions of congestion obtaining on any of the trunk lines en route has been the reflex of the conditions at the terminals themselves.

Practically all transportation in the United States has been based primarily upon the desires and necessities of the consignor rather than upon the abilities of the consignee to receive and digest the freight.

The winter conditions, beginning about December 1, 1917, and which were at their worst when Federal control began, continued until well into March, and were the most severe known to railroad history, and continued for a longer period of time.

The Congested Area.

The congested area was, generally speaking, in the territory north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers and east of the Mississippi River and Chicago.

Due to the causes above enumerated, as well as to the fact that the movement itself was of unusual volume, there was in this territory when the railroads came under Federal control 62,247 carloads of freight which was being delayed short of its ultimate destination, in addition to which there were held by the lines at and west of St. Louis 31,421 carloads; at and west of Chicago, 24,836 carloads; at and south of the Ohio River gateways, 14,061 carloads; and at and south of the Potomac River gateways, 15,545 carloads.

The majority of this freight was for destinations within a line drawn from Portland, Me., through Albany, Rochester, Harrisburg, and Baltimore. This congestion was practically cleared up May 1, 1918.

Bituminous Coal.

The most serious situation presented itself in the case of bituminous coal. This condition was the result of three factors:

1. An actual shortage of cars at the mines on account of the number delayed under load in the congested area and the limitations upon transportation due to the extraordinarily blizzard weather;

2. The lack of systematic distribution, which the Fuel Administration was arranging to provide for; and

3. The dislocation of the New England supply, which was the result of the withdrawal of coastwise steamships, and which presented, on January 1, 1918, the most serious single situation.

The bituminous coal production for the preceding year had been the largest in the history of that industry, approximating 544,000,000 tons, an increase of about 12 per cent over the preceding year. The severe weather conditions prevailing in January, 1918, resulted in a decreased production, almost entirely due to car supply, of 65,294 carloads. Immediate and drastic steps were taken to remedy this situation.

A very considerable proportion of the credit for the increase in the coal production must be attributed to the operation of the zone plan, which overcame the cross hauling of coal and insured its provision from the nearest accessible market.

The Food Situation.

Another serious condition arising early in the year was the threatened shortage of foodstuffs for the allies. A program had been arranged by the Food Administration, by which approximately 1,160,000 tons of food of all kinds per month was to be forwarded to the allies. Early in February the matter was brought earnestly to the attention of the Railroad Administration by the Council of National Defense, the Food Administration, and the representatives of the allies. Approximately 750,000 tons only had been forwarded in January, and at the then rate of progress only 500,000 tons would have been forwarded in February.

The situation was represented to be of the utmost importance and was taken hold of with vigor. Empty box cars were moved in preference from all portions of the East and South into the western grain States, with the result that by March 15 the vessel capacity of the allies had been satisfied and there was available at North Atlantic ports an excess on wheels of 6,318 cars of foodstuffs, exclusive of grain on cars and in elevators.

This situation has not at any time since presented any embarrassments and has been fully and satisfactorily met.

Furnace Situation.

The severe weather conditions and the resulting car shortages had produced a very serious situation with respect to the blast furnaces in the eastern territory. On January 12, 1918, out of a total of 169 furnaces 17 per cent were out of blast. This situation was accentuated during the month of January, until on February 1, 22 per cent were out of blast.

This was given special consideration and a steady improvement was made until June 1. Since then the situation has been practically normal.

Lease of Locomotives.

At the beginning of Federal control the Baldwin Locomotive Works and the American Locomotive Co.'s plants were occupied in the construction of locomotives for the Russian Government, which, on account of the conditions prevailing in that country, it was impossible to deliver. Two hundred of these locomotives were partially constructed and practically all of the material was fabricated. These 200 locomotives were taken over by the War Department and leased to the Railroad Administration and are in service.

While it is not possible in a report of reasonable length to epitomize in detail the action taken under unified control to simplify and economize methods of transportation they can be briefly stated as coming under the following general heads:

Unification of terminals.—This has been general throughout the country at both large and small stations, but has been of the greatest importance at the larger terminals, where terminal managers have been appointed with jurisdiction over the facilities of all lines. Where unnecessary mileage was not involved, a consistent effort has been made to route freight so as to arrive at the specific terminal where it was to be disposed of, and, so far as practicable, interchange switching in terminals has been eliminated.

Hauling of Freight.

Short hauling of freight.—Instructions were issued immediately upon the inauguration of Federal control providing for the movement of freight by the shortest practicable route. This practice has been consistently followed, except where better grade conditions and less congestion were favorable factors on a somewhat longer line. Agencies were created whereby failure to observe the correct routing was detected and remedied.

It is impossible, of course, to estimate the total saving accomplished in this direction. An instance, however, is available in the case of the Northwestern region, where the correction of improper routing, within a period of five months, on 34,941 carloads, resulted in a saving of 4,054,455 car miles.

Solid trains.—This practice was inaugurated of creating solid trains for definite destinations by building up at Chicago, Minneapolis, and St. Paul, St. Louis and Missouri River crossings, which resulted in a natural decrease in intermediate terminal switching and the expedition of essential Government freight. This has been especially valuable in the transportation of export food of all kinds, meats, grain and grain products, and of munitions and steel for shipbuilding plants.

Nonessential Passenger Trains.

Elimination of nonessential passenger trains.—The question of duplicate and unnecessary passenger-train service has been given the most careful consideration, with the result that a number of trains have been discontinued which fell in one of these classes. Between the important terminals the remaining trains have been so spaced as to actually afford greater variety and extent of service than was possible heretofore where, through competitive conditions, the trains on the several lines practically duplicated each other. The saving per year in passenger-train miles by regions is as follows:

Eastern	16,253,914
Allegheny	4,870,000
Southern	1,702,480
Northwestern	23,280,400

Use of New York tubes.—On account of the very serious conditions arising from the unprecedented ice troubles in New York Harbor, the Pennsylvania passenger tubes were utilized for the movement of anthracite coal from the Jersey terminals to Long Island, which afforded a very substantial relief at a most critical time. Under its franchise this could not have been done by the Pennsylvania Railroad under private operation.

The Pittsburgh Gateway.

Pittsburgh gateway.—The extraordinary development of industrial activities in and around Pittsburgh, and the enormous tonnage which is handled locally, makes it very difficult to use this gateway for trunk-line traffic, and this is especially true when the through and local business increases coincidentally, as is usually the case. Physical conditions, which embrace a narrow gorge and a large city, render the solution of this problem exceedingly difficult of local treatment.

It is my conviction that as soon as practicable the trunk-line railroads through Pittsburgh should be relieved by the construction of an entirely new line for freight purposes, connecting them east and west of Pittsburgh, but entirely avoiding the industrial area.

This presents the single notable exception to the statement made previously regarding the capacity of the railroads.

The Coal Zone Plan.

The experience of the railroads under private ownership, especially with a demand for coal far in excess of the tonnage produced, was that shippers reached out into markets far beyond the territory in which their particular coal had normally been sold in previous years. The result was a very considerable waste of transportation, in that a much greater car mileage, reasonably estimated as running into millions of car-miles, was necessary to supply the country with its normal coal requirements than would have been the case had shippers chosen to content themselves with normal markets.

To meet this situation the Railroad and Fuel Administrations jointly established what has come to be known as the bituminous coal zone plan of distribution.

Separated Into Districts.

Under this plan the various bituminous coal-mining districts east of the Rocky Mountains were separated and each assigned a definite territory wherein it could market its coal. It was further provided that coal from any district could be shipped to destinations beyond the zone allotted to that district only upon permit of the Fuel Administration, which was recognized by the Railroad Administration as constituting exemption from the railroad embargoes which were laid down to give force and effect to the zone plan. This permitted proper distribution beyond zone lines of certain special grades of coal, coal for by-products use being a specific example.

The coal-zoning plan, however, did not merely save car-miles, and thus permit the production and transportation of several millions more tons of coal than would otherwise have been possible, it furnished, in addition, the means of utilizing coal produced in the Plains States, which would not otherwise have been produced. This was made possible by prohibiting the shipment of certain eastern coal which the war program required to be kept in the East to territory in the West.

General Results.

It can be said, by way of summary, that the deliberate purpose and the ultimate result of the plan was to compel the greater use of western coal and conserve, for war purposes, eastern coal, and to permit the greater production of both by avoiding useless waste of transportation.

The zone lines laid down, effective April 1, 1918, have been very closely adhered to since, slight modifications having been made from time to time as domestic and war conditions demand.

Marine Department.

The following matters have been handled:

1. General supervision of all water transportation under Federal control on the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, Gulf of Mexico, their tributaries, and also the Great Lakes.

The following special subjects have also been handled:

1. Protection of coal supply for the New England States.
2. Protection of pulp-wood supply to insure ample supply of news-print paper.
3. Cape Cod Canal.
4. Foreign coal supply for New England railroads under Federal control.
5. Movement of potatoes from Maine.

This department has had direct supervision over the marine facilities of the Division of Operations. The following railroad-owned coastwise steamship companies were taken over December 28, 1917:

Southern Pacific Steamship Co., Ocean Steamship Co., Old Dominion Steamship Co., Chesapeake Steamship Co., Baltimore Steam Packet Co., San Francisco & Portland Steamship Co., New England Navigation Co., a total of 61 ships.

In addition to the above, by presidential proclamation the properties of the following steamship companies were taken over on April 13, 1918:

Mallory Steamship Co., Clyde Steamship Co., Southern Steamship Co., Merchants & Miners' Transportation Co., a total of 51 ships. The properties of the four latter companies were returned to their owners by an order issued on December 6, 1918.

Unusual and Unexpected Tonnage.

The original withdrawals of ships from the coastwise service threw upon the railroads a wholly unusual and unexpected tonnage, which, unfortunately, moved into and through the most congested areas. It was not possible to utilize privately owned steamship lines for this purpose, because, naturally, they were disposed to seek that class of tonnage which paid the highest rates and which they could concentrate for a single port. Under Federal control the tonnage which would most relieve the rail lines has been turned to the Coastwise Steamship Section.

In the operation of the Coastwise Steamship Section tonnage was diverted from the Southwest as well as from the entire South, and the supply of cotton for New England mills and of raw materials for eastern war industries was successfully accomplished through South Atlantic ports, at a time when rail gateways were partially closed.

To relieve the northern trunk lines, seven cargo vessels were operated between Lake Michigan ports and Buffalo, handling a total for the season of navigation of 599,811 tons.

The cessation of war activities has lightened the burden upon coastwise railroads to such an extent that the business can now easily be handled by the railroad-owned steamships and the rail lines.

Reference has already been made to the serious conditions resulting from the shortage of efficient motive power, particularly in the eastern section, and the condition of the existing locomotives when Federal control began.

On February 9, 1918, Mr. Frank McManamy, chief inspector of locomotives for the Interstate Commerce Commission, was appointed manager of the locomotive repair section, and authorized to coordinate the repair of locomotives. On July 1, 1918, he was promoted to assistant director in charge of the mechanical department, and his jurisdiction extended to include car repairs, supervision of mechanical standards, and of tests for new devices. Later he was given jurisdiction over the enforcement of Federal laws for the promotion of safety for employees.

To utilize any of the large manufacturing plants for repairs would very seriously limit their effectiveness in the production of new locomotives, and on account of the competition of high wages paid by the shipbuilding plants and war industries generally there was a considerable shortage of skilled mechanical workers in railroad shops.

Volunteer Overtime Work.

Immediate relief could only be secured by working a greater number of hours. On a large number of railroads there were in existence contracts with the mechanical crafts which limited the number of hours per day. The railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, which represented the mechanical crafts on such railroads, very patriotically met this situation and voluntarily agreed that they would, during the period of the war, waive their privileges in this respect.

As a result of this, railroad shops on many of the important lines were placed on a basis of 70 hours per week, and the remainder on 60 hours per week, which was approximately an average increase of 20 per cent in shop hours.

In June all shops were placed on the 60-hour-per-week basis, which continued until the signing of the armistice, when arrangements were made for readjusting the hours which were reduced on November 25 to nine, and December 9 to eight hours per day.
