

PROCEDURE OUTLINED FOR TRADE WITH LUXEMBURG AND OCCUPIED TERRITORY IN RHINE PROVINCES

FREE LIST FOR NEUTRALS APPLIED

American or Allied Military Authorities to Pass Upon Requests to Export to This Region Commodities Not on Free List.

The War Trade Board announces in a new ruling (W. T. B. R. 630) the following procedure in effect for trade with Luxemburg and with that portion of the Rhine provinces of Germany which is included within the area of military occupation by the American and Allied armies.

All commodities contained in the so-called "free list" for the Northern Neutrals, as set forth in War Trade Board Ruling 616, issued February 26, 1919, and in the "free list" for Switzerland, as set forth in War Trade Board Ruling 542, January 27, 1919, may be exported to such territory without restriction.

Applications To Army Officers.

For licenses to export any other commodities to such territory the consignee therein should apply to the Allied military authority in the particular occupied zone for permission to make such importation. This Allied military authority will submit the application, with recommendations, to the Inter-Allied Economic Committee at Luxemburg. This committee, if the application is approved, will issue an import license, and will cable the particulars thereof to the War Trade Board at Washington, D. C. The proposed consignee in the occupied territory will also furnish particulars of such license to the exporter in the United States, who will state on his application for export license the serial number of such import license.

Importation Procedure.

To import into the United States commodities from such territory, applications for individual import licenses should be made to the Bureau of Imports, War Trade Board, Washington, D. C. License to export such commodity from the above territory must be obtained from the Inter-Allied Economic Committee at Luxemburg, who will cable the particulars thereof to the War Trade Board, Washington, D. C. The proposed consignor in the above territory will also furnish particulars of such license to the importer in the United States, who will state on his application for import license the serial number of such export license.

The War Trade Board also announces that commercial communication with the territory above described is now authorized.

NEW MEANS OF FINANCING RAILROADS MUST BE FOUND, SAYS MR. HINES, AS RESULT OF CONGRESS' FAILURE TO PROVIDE FUNDS

BELIEVES BUSINESS INTERESTS WILL AID

Difficulties Presented, Director General Expects, Will Bring Patriotic Cooperation of All Concerned—He Seeks to Devise Plans That Will Cause No Industrial Disturbance.

Mr. Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railroads, has authorized the following statement:

The adjournment of Congress without the passage of the railroad appropriation leaves the United States Railroad Administration confronted with the necessity for the adoption of radically different methods of dealing with its financial problems than it had contemplated when the adoption of the appropriation was expected.

Counted on Appropriation.

The Railroad Administration had felt justified in counting upon the passage of this appropriation. This is true because the money asked for was necessary to meet Government obligations duly incurred and because also it promised to improve and stabilize the general industrial situation through enabling the Railroad Administration to go forward confidently in carrying out its policy as to improvements and also as to maintenance. Confidence in obtaining the appropriation was confirmed by the fact that the House Appropriations Committee after extensive hearings reported the appropriation favorably without any dissent, the House passed it by a vote of 272 to 15, and the Senate Appropriations Committee, after hearing, likewise reported it favorably without any dissent. The recognized urgency of the matter brought the appropriation before the Senate for debate, but the debate was not concluded before the session adjourned.

Expects Aid of Business Interests.

This unexpected result puts upon the Director General the necessity for devising radically different methods of dealing with the extremely difficult situation. I approach the matter in the spirit and with the purpose of finding ways to meet the requirements and to avert financial embarrassments and industrial depression. It would be improper, however, to minimize the difficulties of the situation; but I believe that the very difficulties themselves will result in obtaining pa-

PART 2 OF REGULATIONS 45, RELATING TO THE INCOME TAX, IS BEING SENT TO COLLECTORS

The Bureau of Internal Revenue issues the following:

Part 2 of Regulations 45, relating to the income tax, war profits, and excess profits tax on corporations, is being shipped by the Bureau of Internal Revenue to collectors of internal revenue for distribution.

Part 1, relating to the income tax on individuals, already has been published, and parts 3 and 4, relating respectively to the administrative provisions and definitions and general provisions, each will be issued separately. As soon as practicable a combined edition will be issued.

Part 2 was issued in advance form for the convenience of corporation taxpayers.

NEW TRIAL ORDERED IN CASES OF 19 SOLDIERS AT CAMP GRANT

Press interview by the Secretary of War:

The Judge Advocate General in reviewing the cases of the 19 men tried by general court-martial for assault at Camp Grant found that by reasons of the haste of the trial, which was hurried because the division was about to go overseas, fundamental rights of the accused were ignored, and recommended that the President set aside the convictions and order a new trial. This has been done.

Another court for the trial of these cases has been appointed and the trial will proceed at once, so carefully safeguarded as to prevent any further possibility of prejudice to the men or mistrial.

GENERAL STRIKE AT HABANA.

Possibly All Railroads In Provinces Will Be Affected.

Advices to the State Department to-day state that a general strike including almost every industry and involving all transportation in Habana, Cuba, and possibly all the railroads in the Provinces, was called to take effect at midnight Tuesday.

This is a sympathetic strike in connections with the building trades-unions' strike declared last December, and all attempts at arbitrations have so far failed.

triotic cooperation of all the business interests involved, including the railroad corporations and equipment companies and other producers of material and the bankers. At the moment, there is no occasion to discuss the question of relinquishment of the railroads. My first purpose is to try to solve the problem in other ways.

No Specific Plans Ready.

I am not prepared at the moment to outline specific plans because numerous methods must be devised for dealing with different phases of the subject, and each will require its separate study and perhaps a separate plan of cooperation. But I believe that on the part of all responsible interests affected there will be prompt response to my own definite purpose of finding a way to meet the difficulty, and I do not believe any one should give way to alarm on account of the condition which has been so unexpectedly produced.

The Treasury Department and the War Finance Corporation are cooperating in the matter with the utmost cordiality.

No Discussion of Raising Rates.

In connection with the consideration of this question there has been no discussion of raising rates, either passenger or freight, because the money derived from rates goes into operating revenues which primarily are not affected by the present situation.

Generally speaking, it will be my object to solve the problem facing the Railroad Administration through financial means, rather than through interfering with work involving the employment of labor. I consider it important that there be no industrial disturbances.

In connection with necessary financing, which will have to be done by the railroad corporations, it is the rule that no such corporate financing be undertaken except on certificate of the Railroad Administration, and therefore the Railroad Administration in a sense acts as a clearing house for such financing, thus minimizing the danger of financial confusion.

LUMBER SHORTAGE IN ITALY.

Great Scarcity Said to Exist Throughout the Entire War Period.

Consul General David F. Wilber, at Genoa, reports:

There has been a great shortage of lumber during the entire period of Italy's participation in the war. Switzerland has furnished about 75 per cent of the imports of rough-hewn lumber and about 80 per cent of the squared or lengthwise sawn, the United States supply about 12 per cent of the latter. It should be stated that the arrivals of squared timber, which were in 1914 no less than 900,703 tons, diminished in 1915-1917 to an average under 250,000 tons.

The scarcity and high price of fuel led to a serious cutting down of the olive trees, thereby injuring one of Italy's greatest export industries, that of olive oil, especially in Liguria. Though the cutting has now stopped, it is feared that the damage will not be easily repaired.

There should be pitch-pine lumber needed for construction purposes following the partial suspension of building operations, but at present new enterprise halts, owing to the unsettled conditions.

U. S. Railroad Accountants Instructed To Render Certain Reports Monthly

The United States Railroad Administration, Division of Accounting, issues the following:

ACCOUNTING CIRCULAR NO. 73 (REVISED). WASHINGTON, D. C., February 14, 1919.

Commencing with reports for the month of December, 1918, which are to be submitted in compliance with the provisions of P. S. & A. Circular No. 59, Federal auditors shall hereafter render similar reports for each month in the manner prescribed in the said circular.

The reports required are:

1. A trial balance of the Federal books prepared on forms similar to the sample Form AC-515, made a part of P. S. & A. Circular No. 59, and in the manner described therein.

2. A balance sheet, the assets and liabilities on which will agree with the total debits or credits of balance sheet accounts shown on the trial balance.

3. A statement on letter-size sheets showing the balances in the various authorized accounts indicating amounts due to or from the corporation.

4. A statement on letter-size sheets showing income and profit and loss account items, classified according to form of income and profit and loss statements included in annual report to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"The net statement of income, profit and loss account items, referred to in item 4, should agree with the net difference between the columns 8 and 9 of Form AC-515, and should, therefore, be the aggregate for the period from the beginning of the year. Balances since December 31, 1918, in the account 'Revenue prior to January 1, 1918,' and 'Expense prior to January 1, 1918,' should be included in the 'Income' and 'Profit and Loss' columns of Form AC-515, and in the income statement, separately, against I. C. C. account No. 519, miscellaneous income, or No. 551, miscellaneous income charges, as may be appropriate.

The administration ledger control account shall be considered a balance sheet account and included on the trial balance Form AC-515 and on the balance sheet statement as a separate item beneath the accounts No. 727, other unadjusted debits, or No. 778, other unadjusted credits as may be appropriate.

Submit with the monthly balance sheet a statement of the administration ledger control account showing the balance brought forward from the previous month and the amount and sources of the debits or credits thereto for the month.

The aggregate amount of interroad balances resulting from the application of the provisions of General Order No. 30, carried in the accounts of the debtor roads, should be offset if the accounts are correctly stated by the same amount in the accounts of the creditor roads, so that so far as the entire Federal-controlled railroads are concerned there is neither an actual asset nor liability in this account.

In order to designate these balances so that a proper allocation thereof may be made in the administration balance sheet prepared here, the interroad clearance accounts with Federal roads carrying debit balances shall be classified as a subaccount under I. C. C. Account No. 715—"Miscellaneous accounts receivable," and the interroad clearance accounts with Federal roads carrying credit balances shall be classified under I. C. C. Account No. 761—"Miscellaneous accounts payable." The subaccount under Account No. 715 shall be entitled "Federal interroad clearance accounts, debit balances," and the subaccount under No. 761 shall be entitled "Federal interroad clearance accounts—credit balances." On the balance sheet statement and in reports rendered to the Interstate Commerce Commission such subaccounts shall be reported as separate items following Accounts No. 715 and No. 761, respectively. It should be clearly understood that the accounting outlined for interroad clearing accounts applies only to those with Federal-controlled roads. Balances in interroad clearing accounts with non-Federal roads, if any, must be reported under the appropriate accounts prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Until otherwise instructed, income, profit and loss accounts subsequent to December 31, 1918, shall not be closed to the administration ledger-control account until after the accounts for the month of December, 1919, and other years are stated.

The net balance in columns 8 and 9, income, profit and loss, of Form AC-515, shall, except for the month of December, be shown on the monthly balance sheet against Account No. 784, "Profit and loss—balance."

Every effort should be made to forward these reports within 45 days after the close of the month for which the report is made.

Director.

NO GERMAN NAVAL OFFICERS IN THE U. S. MERCHANT MARINE

Chairman Edward N. Hurley, of the United States Shipping Board, characterizes as misleading a cabled statement from Europe that German naval officers are planning to get into the American merchant marine in pursuance of a plot to "colonize" this country's avenues of export trade, ashore and afloat, with Germans.

Under present conditions it is not possible for an enemy alien to get an officer's license in the merchant marine, and under the Shipping Board system of providing new officers for the merchant marine service, which is to be perpetuated, the board will continue to add only Americans to the present supply of merchant marine officers.

The board has conducted free navigation and engineering schools since June, 1917, and has produced from them more than 7,500 merchant marine officers, said Mr. Hurley.

NEW GENERAL IMPORT LICENSE ANNOUNCED BY TRADE BOARD

Covers All the Unrestricted Commodities from United Kingdom, France, Italy, and Belgium.

The War Trade Board announces that a general import license to be known as PBF 34 has been issued effective March 6, covering the importation into the United States of all unrestricted commodities, when such commodities are shipped from the United Kingdom, France, Italy, or Belgium, or from the possessions, protectorates, colonies, or dominions of the United Kingdom, France, Italy, or Belgium, wherever situate. The list of restricted commodities which are expressly excluded from the terms of this new general import license is as follows: Pig tin; tin ore; tin concentrates; all metal alloys containing more than 20 per cent of tin; wheat; wheat flour; rice; peanuts; splegelesen; ferromanganese; emery, except that produced in Canada; salvarsan, neosalvarsan, arsephenamine, and all substitutes therefor and equivalents thereof; nitrate of soda; sugar.

It is important to note that this new general license expressly supersedes general import license PBF 27 as well as general import licenses PBF 3 and PBF 30. This new general license likewise supersedes the rulings of the Bureau of Imports of the War Trade Board which made it necessary for a period of 60 days to elapse before shipments of commodities from Canada which did not originate there could be licensed for entry into the United States, as to such shipments still remaining in Canada.

Under the terms of this new general import license it will be possible, therefore, to import unrestricted commodities without securing individual import licenses therefor from not only England, France, Italy, and Belgium, but from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Belgian Congo, and all other possessions, protectorates, colonies, or dominions of Great Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium, wherever situate.

This new general import license, however, does not apply to shipments now in the United States which may have come forward in violation of the rules and regulations of the War Trade Board, nor to shipments which may have started from the port of shipment prior to March 6, the date upon which this new general import license becomes effective.

SUGAR FROM CUBA.

The War Trade Board announces in a new ruling (W. T. B. R. 629) that a new general import license, to be known as PBF No. 33, has been issued, covering the importation of sugar from Cuba when consigned to the United States Sugar Equalization Board. This amends W. T. B. R. 613, as published February 26, in so far as the cabling of license numbers by the importer for shipments of Cuban sugar is concerned, as the consuls have been authorized to certify invoices for such shipments of sugar as may be coming from Cuba without the production of an individual import license, if the same is consigned to the Sugar Equalization Board.

Official Communiqués On Peace Conference

The following official communiqués on the peace conference were issued at Paris:

"March 4.—The first subcommittee of the interallied commission on ports, waterways, and railways met at 4.15 this afternoon at the ministry of public works, and discussed the draft of the convention relative to the freedom of inland transit, which was then referred to a subcommittee."

"March 4.—The second subcommittee of the interallied commission on ports, waterways, and railways met this morning at 10.30 at the ministry of public works. Discussion of the draft regarding the international regime of ports was continued, and the first 8 articles of the draft were agreed upon, subject to verbal arrangements by the editing committee. The next meeting of the subcommittee was set for 10 o'clock to-morrow morning."

Commission on Belgian Affairs.

"March 4.—There was authorized after the fourth meeting of the commission on Belgian affairs at the Quai d'Orsay, at 10 o'clock this morning, a communique to the press to the effect that the commission had met and had arrived at a decision regarding a general solution of the question of the revision of the treaty of 1839, which it will submit to the supreme council in due course."

PARIS CENTER OF AMERICAN RED CROSS WORK IN EUROPE

In conformity with plans for the carrying out of Red Cross postwar activities abroad, the office of commissioner for Europe has been created and the commission for Europe, a body established in November last to consider and advise the war council in respect to all policies affecting the American Red Cross in all European countries and to perform various other functions, has been abolished.

Robert E. Olds Appointed.

Robert E. Olds, one of the pioneers of the commission for France, has been appointed commissioner for Europe, with the assimilated rank of lieutenant colonel. Harvey D. Gibson, former head of the commission for France and recently chairman of the commission for Europe, will remain with the organization abroad for some time to come in an advisory capacity and assist in perfecting the plans for dealing with new relief conditions that have developed.

Col. Olds is regarded as the ablest man obtainable to direct the American Red Cross work on its lines of future operation in Europe. He has had experience in France under Maj. Murphy, Maj. Perkins, and Col. Gibson, and is thoroughly acquainted with all details of the relief work which has centered there dur-

ALLIED PROVISIONS EXPORT COMMISSION IS DISSOLVED

Pork and Pork Products May Now Be Freely Shipped to Certain Countries.

The War Trade Board has been advised that the Allied Provisions Export Commission has been dissolved, and that purchases of foodstuffs for shipment to Great Britain, France, and Italy will no longer be made by said commission.

The War Trade Board announces in a new ruling (W. T. B. R. 631) that pork and pork products have been removed from the export conservation list effective March 6, 1919, and that said commodities may now be exported freely to the United Kingdom, France, Italy, Belgium, Japan, or Greece, or their colonies, possessions, or protectorates, under special export license RAC-63 (W. T. B. R. 608, issued February 26, 1919).

Pork and Pork Products.

The commodities included under the term "pork and pork products" are the following: Lard, neutral lard, bacon, banded and mess pork, coarse hog bellies, canned pork, fatbacks, fresh pork, hams, pickled pork, shoulders, spareribs, stag bellies.

The ruling, that all applications for license to export pork or pork products to European destinations must be accompanied by a certificate of the United States Food Administration, to the effect that the commodities described in such applications have been sold for export at prices approved by the Food Administration, has been withdrawn as of March 6, 1919, and W. T. B. R. 586, issued January 31, 1919, W. T. B. R. 587, issued February 7, 1919 (so far as said ruling concerns pork and pork products), and W. T. B. R. 601, issued February 14, 1919, have been rescinded as of said date.

Exporters should acquaint themselves with the import restrictions of the countries of destination before making definite and unconditional commitments for export sales.

ing the war. Permanent headquarters are to be maintained in Paris, and the work for the whole of Europe and the Balkans hereafter will be directed from that capital.

Paris Control Bureau.

Heretofore the various commissions of the Red Cross to countries in Europe have reported directly to the Washington headquarters of the Red Cross and have drawn on Washington for personnel and supplies. In future all requisitions for personnel and supplies will come through the office of the commissioner for Europe and be handled by a special bureau, the department of requirements. One reason for establishing this system is that there will be a great amount of material available for general European use in the reserve stocks built up in France prior to the signing of the armistice.

RAILWAY CONDITIONS HAMPER FOREIGN TRADE WITH SIBERIA

State Department advices from Vladivostok report that foreign and domestic firms there are transacting a very limited business with the interior and that business will continue to be limited until the railway is operating effectively and currency is so stabilized that firms can afford to accept large quantities of rubles without risk of loss. Even some of the more optimistic people at Vladivostok say that it will take six months to restore the railway to fair working condition, even with the management of the railway technical board under the presidency of John F. Stevens.

The warehouse facilities of Vladivostok have proven inadequate. Only firms willing to confine themselves to the moderate business being transacted in eastern Siberia, or those ready to invest a considerable sum in laying the foundations of a future business, according to the American consul at Vladivostok, should be encouraged to believe that a promising field for their activities exists in Siberia at the present time.

GOODS TRANSSHIPPED FREELY.

According to a cablegram of February 26, the American Consul General in London has been informed by the Controller of the British Department of Import Restrictions that "relative to transit via the United Kingdom of goods from America to destinations beyond, such transshipments are now being allowed practically without exception." It is not understood that the requirement of an import license is waived in the case of prohibited goods to be transhipped, but that licenses will be granted freely.

EMBARGO ON DYESTUFFS.

Commercial Attaché Ferrin has cabled from Melbourne, under date of February 28, that a Government proclamation published February 27 prohibits the importation of all dyes except those of British origin, unless the written consent of the Australian minister of state for trade and customs has first been obtained.

COMMERCIAL TRIPS TO BELGIUM URGED BY MINISTER WHITLOCK

Visits to Belgium by American business men are urged by Minister Brand F. Whitlock as a means of hastening the restoration of normal trade conditions there. Cabling from Brussels, Minister Whitlock says:

"I think it would be well to allow as many reputable business men as possible, who desire to do so, to come to Belgium, owing to the fact that there are so many business men in Belgium who desire to enter into commercial relations with firms and persons in America. The opportunity for increasing American trade relations is a great one and one that is being lost at the present time. I also think that tourists might be allowed to come, as the restoration of normal conditions would be brought nearer by the money they would spend."

In transmitting this cablegram to the Department of Commerce the Department of State said:

"The attitude of this department toward the suggestion is favorable so far as it applies to business men; but the same attitude can not be taken regarding tourists, because of the shortage of food and means of transportation. Each application for a passport would of necessity be considered separately and decided on its merits."

“Overwhelming Majority of American People Favor The League of Nations, My First Message to Europe,” President Says in Speech on Eve of Return to Paris

President Wilson, at a public meeting held in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, on March 4, on the eve of his departure for Europe, spoke as follows:

“MY FELLOW CITIZENS: I accept the intimation of the air just played ('Over There'). I will not come back 'till it's over, over there.' And yet I pray God in the interests of peace and of the world that that may be soon.

“The first thing that I am going to tell the people on the other side of the water is that an overwhelming majority of the American people is in favor of the league of nations. I know that that is true. I have had unmistakable intimations of it from all parts of the country, and the voice rings true in every case. I account myself fortunate to speak here under the unusual circumstances of this evening. I am happy to associate myself with Mr. Taft in this great cause. He has displayed an elevation of view and devotion to public duty which is beyond praise.

Not a Party Issue.

“And I am the more happy because this means that this isn't a party issue. No party has a right to appropriate this issue and no party will in the long run dare oppose it.

“We have listened to so clear and admirable an exposition (Mr. Taft's address preceding the President) of many of the main features of the proposed covenant of the league of nations that it is perhaps not necessary for me to discuss in any particular way the contents of the document. I will seek rather to give you its setting. I don't know when I have been more impressed than by the conferences of the commission set up by the conference of peace to draw up the covenant for a league of nations. The representatives of 14 nations sat around that board—not young men, not men inexperienced in the affairs of their own countries, not men inexperienced in the politics of the world—and the inspiring influence of every meeting was the concurrence of purpose on the part of all those men to come to an agreement and an effective working agreement with regard to this league of the civilized world.

Conviction Felt by All.

“There was a conviction in the whole impulse, there was conviction of more than one sort, there was the conviction that this thing ought to be done and there was also the conviction that not a man there would venture to go home and say that he hadn't tried to do it.

“Mr. Taft has set a picture for you of what failure of this great purpose would mean. We have been hearing for all these weary months that this agony of war has lasted of the sinister purpose of the Central Empires and we have made maps of the course that they meant their conquests to take. Where did the lines of that map lie, of that central line that we used to call from Bremen to Bagdad? They lay through these very regions to which Mr. Taft has called your attention, but they lay then through a united empire. The Austro-Hungarian empire, whose integrity Germany was bound to respect as her ally, lay in the path of that line of conquest; the Turkish empire, whose interests she professed to make her own, lay in the direct path that she intended to tread. And now what has happened? The Austro-Hungarian empire has gone to pieces and the Turkish empire has disappeared, and the nations that effected that great result—for it was the result of liberation—are now responsible as the trustees of the assets of those great nations. You not only would have weak nations lying in this path but you would have nations in which that old poisonous seed of intrigue could be planted with the certainty that the crop would be abundant; and one of the things that the league of nations is intended to watch is the course of intrigue. Intrigue can not stand publicity, and if the league of nations were nothing but a great debating society it would kill intrigue.

Right of Every Member Nation.

“It is one of the agreements of this covenant that it is the friendly right of every nation a member of the league to call attention to anything that it thinks will disturb the peace of the world, no matter where that thing is occurring. There is no subject that may touch the peace of the world which is exempt from inquiry and discussion, and I think everybody here present will agree with me that Germany would never have gone to war if she had permitted the world to discuss the aggression upon Serbia for a single week. The British foreign office pleaded that there might be a day or two delay so that representatives of the nations of Europe could get together and discuss the possibilities of a settlement. Germany did not dare permit a day's discussion. You know what happened. So soon as the world realized that an outlaw was at large the nations began, one by one, to draw together against her. We know for certainty that if Germany had thought for a moment that Great Britain would go in with France and Russia she never would have undertaken the enterprise, and the league of nations is meant as notice to all outlaw nations that not only Great Britain, but the United States and the rest of the world will go into check enterprises of that sort. And so the league of nations is nothing more nor less than the covenant that the world will always maintain the standards which it has now vindicated by some of the most precious blood ever spilt.

Demanded By the People.

“The liberated peoples of the Austro-Hungarian Empire and of the Turkish Empire call out to us for this thing. It has not arisen in the councils of statesmen. Europe is a bit sick at heart at this very moment because it sees that the statesmen have had no vision and that the only vision has been the vision of the people. Those who suffer see. Those against whom wrong is wrought know how desirable is the right of the righteous. Nations that have long been under the heel of Austria, that have long covered before the German, that have long suffered the indescribable agonies of being governed by the Turk, have called out to the world generation after generation for justice, liberation, and succor, and no cabinet in the world has heard them. Private organizations, pitying hearts, philanthropic men and women, have poured out their treasure in order to relieve these sufferings, but no nation has said to the nations responsible, 'you must stop; this thing is intolerable and we will not permit it.' And the vision has been with the people. My friends, I wish you would reflect upon this proposition; the vision as to what is necessary for great reforms has seldom come from the top in the nations of the world. It has come from the need and aspiration and self-assertion of great bodies of men who meant to be free. And I can explain some of the criticisms which have been leveled against this great enterprise only by the supposition that men who utter the criticisms have never felt the great pulse of the heart of the world.

No Stemming the Tide.

“And I am amazed—not alarmed but amazed—that there should be in some quarters such a comprehensive ignorance of the state of the world. These gentlemen don't know what the mind of men is just now. Everybody else does. I don't know where they have been closeted, I do not know by what influences they have been blinded, but I do know they have been separated from the general currents of the thought of mankind.

“And I want to utter this solemn warning, not in the way of a threat; the forces of the world do not threaten, they operate. The great tides of the world do not give notice that they are going to rise and run; they rise in their majesty and overwhelming might, and those who stand in the way are overwhelmed. Now the heart of the world is awake and the heart of the world must be satisfied. Don't let yourselves suppose for a moment that uneasiness in the populations of Europe is due entirely to economic causes or economic motives; something very much deeper underlies it all than that. They see that their Governments have never been able to defend them against intrigue or aggression, and that there is no force of foresight or of prudence in any modern cabinet to stop war. And therefore they say 'there must be some fundamental cause for this,' and the fundamental cause they are beginning to perceive to be that nations have stood singly or in little jealous groups against each other, fostering prejudice, increasing the danger of war rather than concerting measures to prevent it; and that if there is right in the world, if there is justice in the world, there is no reason why nations should be divided in support of justice.

World Looking to the United States.

"They are, therefore, saying if you really believe that there is a right, if you really believe that wars ought to be stopped, stop thinking about the rival interests of nations and think about men and women and children throughout the world. Nations are not made to afford distinction to their rulers by way of success in the maneuvers of politics; nations are meant, if they are meant for anything, to make the men, women, and children in them secure and happy and prosperous, and no nation has the right to set up its special interests against the interests and benefits of mankind, least of all this great Nation which we love. It was set up for the benefit of mankind; it was set up to illustrate the highest ideals and to achieve the highest aspirations of men who wanted to be free; and the world—the world of to-day—believes that and counts on us, and would be thrown back into the blackness of despair if we deserted it.

"I have tried once and again, my fellow citizens, to say to little circles of friends or to larger bodies what seems to be the real hope of the peoples of Europe, and I tell you frankly I have not been able to do so, because when the thought tries to crowd itself into speech the profound emotion of the thing is too much; speech will not carry. I have felt the tragedy of the hope of those suffering peoples.

"It is a tragedy because it is a hope which can not be realized in its perfection and yet I have felt besides its tragedy its compulsion, its compulsion upon every living man to exercise every influence that he has to the utmost to see that as little as possible of that hope is disappointed because if men can not now, after this agony of bloody sweat, come to their self-possession and see how to regulate the affairs of the world we will sink back into a period of struggle in which there will be no hope and therefore no mercy. There can be no mercy where there is no hope, for why should you spare another if you yourself expect to perish? Why should you be pitiful if you can get no pity? Why should you be just if, upon every hand, you are put upon?

"There is another thing which I think the critics of this covenant have not observed. They not only have not observed the temper of the world but they have not even observed the temper of those splendid boys in khaki that they sent across the seas. I have had the proud consciousness of the reflected glory of those boys because the constitution made me their commander-in-chief and they have taught me some lessons. When we went into the war we went into it on the basis of declarations which it was my privilege to utter because I believed them to be an interpretation of the purpose and thought of the people of the United States.

"And those boys went over there with the feeling that they were sacredly bound to the realization of those ideals; that they were not only going over there to beat Germany; they were not going over there merely with resentment in their hearts against a particular outlaw nation; but that they were crossing those three thousand miles of sea in order to show to Europe that the United States, when it became necessary, would go anywhere where the rights of mankind were threatened. They would not sit still in the trenches. They would not be restrained by the prudence of experienced continental commanders. They thought they had come over there to do a particular thing, and they were going to do it and do it at once. And just as soon as that rush of spirit as well as the rush of body came in contact with the lines of the enemy they began to break, and they continued to break until the end. They continued to break, my fellow citizens, not merely because of the physical force of those lusty youngsters but because of the irresistible spiritual force of the armies of the United States. It was that that they felt. It was that that awed them. It was that that made them feel if these youngsters ever got a foothold they could never be dislodged, and that therefore every foot of ground that they won was permanently won for the liberty of mankind.

"And do you suppose that, having felt that crusading spirit of these youngsters who went over there not to glorify America but to serve their fellow men, I am going to permit myself for one moment to slacken in my effort to be worthy of them and of their cause? What I said at the opening I said with a deeper meaning than perhaps you have caught; I do not mean to come back until its over over there, and it must not be over until the nations of the world are assured of the permanency of peace.

"Gentlemen on this side of the water would be very much profited by getting into communication with some gentlemen on the other side of the water. We sometimes think, my fellow citizens, that the experienced statesmen of European nations are an unusually hardheaded set of men, by which we generally mean, although we do not admit it, they are a bit cynical; they say 'this is a practical world' by which you always mean that it is not an ideal world; that they do not believe things can be settled upon an ideal basis. Well, I never came into intimate contact with them before, but if they used to be that way they are not that way now. They have been subdued, if that was once their temper, by the awful significance of recent events and the awful importance of what is to ensue, and there is not one of them with whom I have come in contact who does not feel he can not in conscience return to his people from Paris unless he has done his utmost to do something more than attach his name to a treaty of peace. Every man in that conference knows the treaty of peace in itself will be inoperative, as Mr. Taft has said, without this constant support and energy of a great organization such as is supplied by the league of nations.

"And men who, when I first went over there, were sceptical of the possibility of forming a league of nations, admitted that if we could but form it it would be an invaluable instrumentality through which to secure the operation of the various parts of the treaty; and when that treaty comes back gentlemen on this side will find the covenant not only in it, but so many threads of the treaty tied to the covenant that you can not dissect the covenant from the treaty without destroying the whole vital structure. The structure of peace will not be vital without the league of nations and no man is going to bring back a cadaver with him.

Puzzle in Some Criticisms.

"I must say that I have been puzzled by some of the criticisms—not by the criticisms themselves; I can understand them perfectly even when there was no foundation for them; but by the fact of the criticism. I can not imagine how these gentlemen can live and not live in the atmosphere of the world. I can not imagine how they can live and not be in contact with the events of their times, and I particularly can not imagine how they can be Americans and set up a doctrine of careful selfishness thought out to the last detail. I have heard no counsel of generosity in their criticism. I have heard no constructive suggestion. I have heard nothing except 'will it not be dangerous to us to help the world?' It would be fatal to us not to help it.

"From being what I will venture to call the most famous and the most powerful Nation in the world, we would of a sudden have become the most contemptible. So I did not need to be told, as I have been told, that the people of the United States would support this covenant. I am an American and I knew they would. What a sweet revenge it is upon the world. They laughed at us once; they thought we did not mean our professions of principle. They thought so until April of 1917. It was hardly credible to them that we would do more than send a few men over and go through the forms of helping, and when they saw multitudes hastening across the sea, and saw what those multitudes were eager to do when they got to the other side, they stood at amaze and said 'the thing is real, this Nation is the friend of mankind as it said it was.' The enthusiasm, the hope, the trust, the confidence in the future bred by that change of view is indescribable. Take an individual American and you may often find him selfish and confined to his special interests; but take the American in the mass and he is willing to die for an ideal. The sweet revenge therefore is this, that we believed in righteousness and now we are ready to make the supreme sacrifice for it, the supreme sacrifice of throwing in our fortunes with the fortunes of men everywhere.

Washington's Words Interpreted.

"Mr. Taft was speaking of Washington's utterance about entangling alliances, and if he will permit me to say so, he put the exactly right interpretation upon what Washington said, the interpretation that is inevitable if you read what he said, as most of these gentlemen do not. And the thing that he longed for was just what we are now about to supply; an arrangement which will disentangle all the alliances in the world.

"Nothing entangles, nothing entmeshes a man except a selfish combination with somebody else. Nothing entangles a nation, hampers it, binds it, except to enter into a combination with some other nation against the other nations of the world. And this great disentanglement of all alliances is now to be accomplished by this covenant, because one of the covenants is that no nation shall enter into any relationship with another nation inconsistent with the covenants of the league nations. Nations promise not to have alliances. Nations promise not to make combinations against each other. Nations agree there shall be but one combination, and that is the combination of all against the wrongdoer.

"And so I am going back to my task on the other side with renewed vigor. I had not forgotten what the spirit of the American people is. But I have been immensely refreshed by coming in contact with it again. I did not know how good home felt until I got here.

"The only place a man can feel at home is where nothing has to be explained to him. Nothing has to be explained to me in America, least of all the sentiment of the American people. I mean, about great fundamental things like this. There are many differences of judgment as to policy—and perfectly legitimate. Sometimes profound differences of judgment, but those are not differences of sentiment, those are not differences of purpose, those are not differences of ideals. And the advantage of not having to have anything explained to you is that you recognize a wrong explanation when you hear it.

"In a certain rather abandoned part of the frontier at one time it was said they found a man who told the truth; he was not found telling it, but he could tell it when he heard it. And I think I am in that situation with regard to some of the criticisms I have heard. They don't make any impression on me because I know there is no medium that will transmit them, that the sentiment of the country is proof against such narrowness and such selfishness as that. I commend these gentlemen to communion with their fellow citizens.

Confidence in the Future.

"What are we to say, then, as to the future? I think, my fellow citizens, that we can look forward to it with great confidence. I have heard cheering news since I came to this side of the water about the progress that is being made in Paris toward the discussion and clarification of a great many difficult matters; and I believe settlements will begin to be made rather rapidly from this time on at those conferences. But what I believe—what I know as well as believe, is this: that the men engaged in those conferences are gathering heart as they go, not losing it; that they are finding community of purpose, community of ideal to an extent that perhaps they did not expect; and that amidst all the interplay of influence—because it is infinitely complicated—amidst all the interplay of influence, there is a forward movement which is running toward the right. Men have at last perceived that the only permanent thing in the world is the right, and that a wrong settlement is bound to be a temporary settlement—bound to be a temporary settlement for the very best reason of all, that it ought to be a temporary settlement, and the spirits of men will rebel against it, and the spirits of men are now in the saddle.

An Incident in Italy.

"When I was in Italy, a little limping group of wounded Italian soldiers sought an interview with me. I could not conjecture what it was they were going to say to me, and with the greatest simplicity, with touching simplicity, they presented me with a petition in favor of the league of nations.

"Their wounded limbs, their impaired vitality were the only argument they brought with them. It was a simple request that I lend all the influence that I might happen to have to relieve future generations of the sacrifices that they had been obliged to make. That appeal has remained in my mind as I have ridden along the streets in European capitals and heard cries of the crowd, cries for the league of nations from lips of people who, I venture to say, had no particular notion of how it was to be done, who were not ready to propose a plan for a league of nations, but whose hearts said that something by way of a combination of all men everywhere must come out of this. As we drove along country roads weak old women would come out and hold flowers to us. Why should they hold flowers up to strangers from across the Atlantic? Only because they believed that we were the messengers of friendship and of hope and these flowers were their humble offerings of gratitude that friends from so great a distance should have brought them so great a hope.

"It is inconceivable that we should disappoint them and we shall not. The day will come when men in America will look back with swelling hearts and rising pride that they should have been privileged to make the sacrifice which it was necessary to make in order to combine their might and their moral power with the cause of justice for men of every kind everywhere.

"God give us the strength and vision to do it wisely. God give us the privilege of knowing that we did it without counting the cost, and because we were true Americans, lovers of liberty and of right."

Prior to President Wilson's address former President William Howard Taft addressed the gathering, outlining in great length all the features of the covenant of the league of nations and indorsing the covenant for himself and for the League to Enforce Peace, an organization of which he is president.

NEW TAX DECREES IN ITALY.

Increase Placed on Billiard Tables in Public and Private Use.

Consul General David F. Wilber, at Genoa, reports:

The tax on billiard tables in private use has been increased to 50 lire ($9.65), and to 100 lire ($19.30) for those in public places of business. This decree is effective from January 1, 1919.

Dating from January 1, 1919, the stamp tax on receipts and quittances is increased from 5 to 10 centimes (approximately from 1 to 2 cents).

A decree executive November 20, 1918, and continuing in force until the end of the war, concedes exemption from stamp tax to checks issued abroad or in the Kingdom for account of the American, Belgian, French, and British Governments and the Governments of the other belligerent allied States to provide for the payment of military purchases and salaries to the respective troops and missions in Italy.

A recent decree proposes a stamp tax on advertisements, announcements, and notices inserted in newspapers, annuals, timetables, or other advertising mediums published in Italy. The tax will apply to announcements of birth, death, betrothal, or marriage, or to any personal items inserted in the advertising columns for payment made. The tax is payable by the person inserting the item, and collectible by the medium in which it is inserted, and is to be proportional to the cost of the insertion.
